Styled on Fifth Avenue
BY
Raymond Loewy

BUILT IN SOUTH BEND
BY 7,300 MASTER
CRAFTSMEN

RIGGING ace of American industrial designers is Paris-born Raymond Loewy. From his Fifth Avenue penthouse studios march forth, in steady procession, the working models for such masterpieces of functional beauty as the Pennsylvania Railroad's streamlined locomotives, the S. S. Princess Anne, the 1938 Studebaker cars.

Instructed to stop at nothing to make Studebaker's new Presidents and Commanders the most appealing new cars ever built, Loewy succeeded so remarkably the authoritative Magazine of Art names Studebaker best designed car of the year.

All important in all Loewy creations is soundness of structure. And here the great craftsmanship of Studebaker's famed 7,300 long-time artisans has scored tellingly in making this year's Studebakers not only the best looking cars but the best buys.

Studebaker's force of unhurried, conscientious, friendly fellow townsmen has given these great cars matchless stamina, incredible smoothness, unequalled balance, ride and handling ease as a 10-mile drive will prove.

More than 86 years of Studebaker experience are back of the standout engineering and research, vast modernly equipped plants and 800-acre million-dollar proving ground which combine to assure so much value to you.

Looks like a million but costs very little! That, in a nutshell, is the 1938 Studebaker story. Shown is the inimitably beautiful President Club Sedan for six with gracefully contoured trunk. Standard, no-extra-cost equipment in all 1938 Studebakers, even the lowest priced Commander, are such advancements as planar independent suspension, automatic hill holder, non-slam rotary door latches, steel bodies reinforced by steel box girders, oversize, weather-tight trunk, variable ratio steering, Fram oil economizer, horizontal transmission, hypoid gear rear axle, finest shock absorbers — to mention but a few. Buy on low cost C. I. T. budget plan. The Studebaker Corporation, South Bend, Indiana.

LETTERS TO THE EDITORS

Hitler in Austria

Sirs:

Your March 28 issue, depicting the events leading up to and including the latest history-making episodes in Germany and Austria, was extremely interesting and instructive and, as far as I know, accurate. In fact, I believe that LIFE itself has made some sort of an historical mark here.

LARRY WITTLIG

Marietta, Ohio

Sirs:

Your issue of March 28 is a revolting chunk of Nazi propaganda.

ABEN KANDEL

Hollywood, Calif.

Sirs:

Three cheers for the picture-biography of Hitler and his government! It was unbiased, a thing quite rare nowadays.

PAUL KOPSCH

Washington, D.C.

Sirs:

Why must LIFE write a "book" on Hitler and his escapades? The magazine was taken up with triumphs of a lunatic.

ELEANOR NICHOLS

FRED PATTON

Camden, N.J.

Sirs:

As an Austrian living since a few months in the U.S. and being very familiar with all political events in Central Europe, I want to express my deep admiration for your extremely vivid picture of Austrian history, past and present.

E. W. LENK

Sirs:

Your issue is too pro-German. I am too much a real American citizen to have it on my office table.

DR. A. W. MARKER

Sirs:

Pictures like yours show how vital democracy is and what it means to be living in a free country. We cannot realize how fortunate and valuable freedom really is until we recognize the struggles of dictatorial countries.

Hitler the Scholar

Sirs:

Your March 28 issue gave interesting facts concerning the life of Hitler. What I looked for most but couldn't find was regarding his education. Just what are his scholastic attainments? Please elucidate.

TRUMAN M. MAYFIELD

Superintendent

Concord High School
Portageville, Mo.

● Hitler's scholastic attainments are few. Rudolf Olden, an unsympathetic biographer, says that in school the boy Hitler learned easily but liked to think of anything but his work. His father tried vainly to make him study for a career as a civil servant but Adolf wanted to paint. At 15 or 16 he left school. Later he tried to get into art school, failed, tried to get into architectural school, failed again.—ED.

Numerology

Sirs:

In the issue of March 28, we note that the license plate on the car pictured as the death car of Franz Ferdinand and still preserved in Vienna bears the figures A111 and 18.

What an opportunity some prophet missed to calculate the armistice. Letting A stand for the figure 1, we have 1111 or November 11 and the year 18.

Without superstition,

REV. D. R. HUTCHINSON

Death at Sarajevo

Sirs:

Wrong are the editors of LIFE when they state on page 15 of the March 28 issue that a Serbian bomb blew Archduke Franz Ferdinand and his morganatic wife to "kingdom come." Proof of the error lies not only in history books but in the picture appearing to the right of the Archduke's bloodstained tunic. Had a bomb done the work, little would be left of the death car which appears to be in such an excellent state of preservation.

An attempt was made to bomb the Austrian heir earlier the same day but it failed. Actually Gavrilo Princip fired one shot each into the Archduke and his wife, mortally wounding both of them.

Despite the historical faux pas, LIFE's pictorial background of the Austro-German "union" is marvelous.

GORDON PATES, '39

University of Washington
Seattle, Wash.

● Reader Pates has his history straight. The bomb which was thrown at the Archduke on the fatal morning bounced off the hood of the car and exploded in the street. The shooting occurred an hour later.—ED.

Unscared Rumanians

Sirs:

Your issue of March 28 states that the Rumanians are scared sick of the Hungarians. Rumania has absolutely no reason to fear Hungary inasmuch as she excels Hungary in area, population, resources, army and armaments; while the Hungarian peasant of Rumania, unlike that of Hungary, owns his own land and is an active participant in Rumanian politics.

GEORGE F. A. BOIAN

Foreign Correspondent of the Porunca Vremii of Bucharest, Rumania

New York, N.Y.

● LIFE respectfully doubts if all Rumanians share Mr. Boian's feeling of confidence. Fearless though Rumania may possibly be of Hungary alone, she cannot ignore the fact that Hungary and Germany are now friendly neighbors. Hungarians claim a huge crescent of Rumanian territory and, with Germany's backing, they might well enforce the claim.—ED.

Living Medici

Sirs:

In your issue of LIFE, March 21, we were quite interested in the article about the Medici family of Florence, Italy. Though we found the article true in almost every respect, there is one point in which we think you have been somewhat misguided.

The article states that the Medici family passed out of existence in 1743, some 400 years after the founding of the illustrious family. We can say with some pride that we are descendants of the Medici family (if not close, at least distant).

Boy Highlander

Sirs:

A photograph appeared in your issue of March 14, showing a boy 15 years of age, a member of the Seaforth Highlanders, and stating that the British Army had accepted this boy owing to trouble in obtaining sufficient recruits.

This statement is absolutely erroneous, and I am enclosing herewith a copy of the same picture which was published in the Glasgow Bulletin (a Scottish newspaper) on which it states that the boy is a member of the band, which is correct.

The British Army enlists boys of the age of 15 who learn drumming, and they are on the strength of the Regiment as boys until they attain the age of 19 years when they are taken on the strength as men. Until they reach this age, they are not allowed to go with the Regiment on active service.

Eton Addendum

Sirs:

May I take the liberty of complimenting LIFE on the fine job that it did on Eton College (April 4 issue). I was pleasantly surprised by the fact that not a single serious error occurred in it. In view of the peculiar customs and jargon for which Eton is famous.

There are one or two little points that may be of interest to you. Improbably enough, the roll call to find out if everyone is present is called "absence" at Eton. Not all Etonians play cricket. About 50% of them row on the Thames, and are called "wetbobs," whereas those favoring cricket are known as "drybobs."

Members of "Pop" are also allowed to have their overcoat collars turned down, and to "tan" almost anyone they see fit, with a ribbed cane. Other "tanning" is confined to members of "house libraries" which comprise, usually, six or seven boys in each house. Members of "house libraries" are only permitted to "tan" members of their own house, and those with a flat cane. "Tanning" is not to be confused with "swishing" or "birching." The latter is performed only by the headmaster, who must do it with a straight arm. One is "tanned" with one's pants up, and "birched" with one's pants down. Although I have no personal experience of the latter, I am informed that it far surpasses "tanning" in discomfort.

The fire department must be new since my day, and I may be in error, but I do not recall the existence of a Boy Scout troop. The Wall Game is not the only kind of football played at Eton. The more popular variety is the Field Game, which possesses many of the qualities and much of the violence of a fine mixture of soccer, rugby and American football. Other sports include squash and hard rackets, fives, beagling, boxing, wrestling, swimming, fencing, gymnasium and smoking behind hedges in the meadows near the Thames. The last named is not on the approved list.

G. W. WYNNE

◆ ◆ THE CASE OF THE BAD-TEMPERED BRIDE ◆ ◆

Why didn't Sergeant McGaffney feel more alarmed for Lois's safety?

SIMMONS

1 Four months ago Lois Fuller had made a lovely bride. There was apparently no question about its being a love match. She had seemed completely happy.

2 But some shadow had fallen on Lois's life. On the testimony of Norah, the cook, "Mrs. Fuller was always either brooding or flying off the handle." As proof of which, that very day, she said, her mistress had thrown the morning paper in her husband's face.

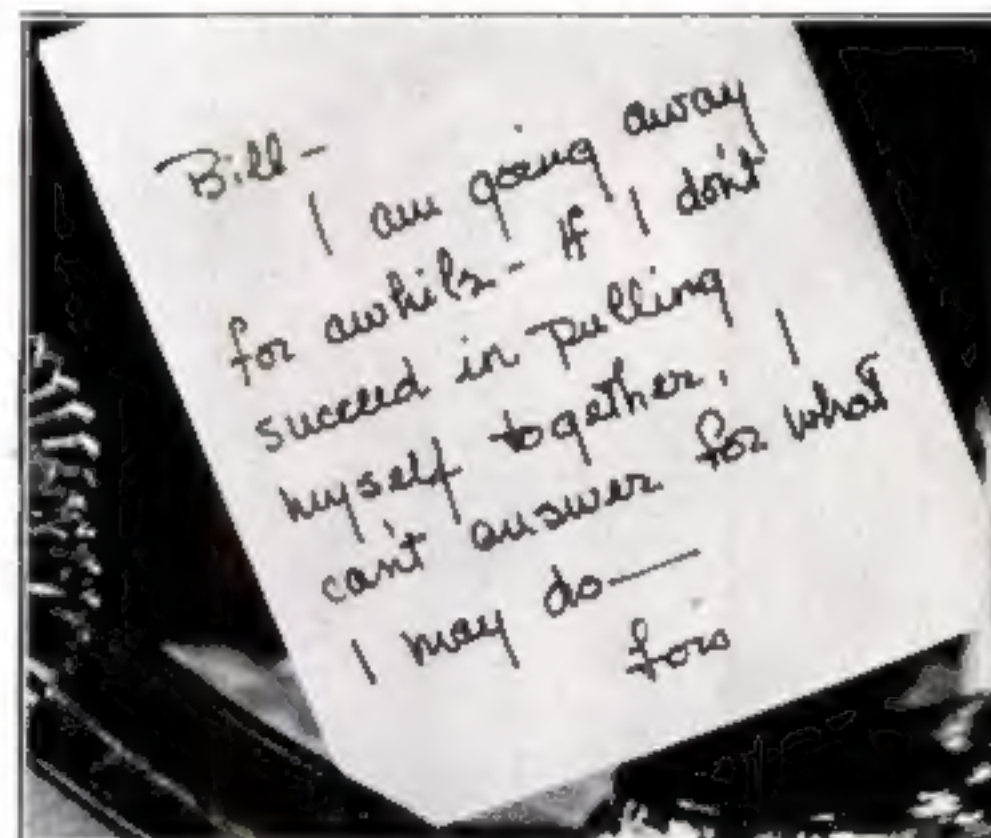

3 On the noon of that same day, her husband, at lunch with a business friend in a well-known restaurant, was astonished to see his young wife at another table with a strange man. Lois had not told him of her luncheon engagement.

4 At the office, torn with worry, her husband tried all afternoon, without success, to get in touch with Lois. With an increasing premonition of trouble, he left for home early.

5 Arriving home, he met the cook, Norah, leaving the house with her bag. She told him, tearfully, that she had been fired. She had no idea what for, but was not the kind to stay where she wasn't wanted.

6 Not stopping to argue, but telling her to wait, he rushed immediately to his wife's room—only to find it in mad confusion and his wife missing. A letter lying on the dressing table confirmed his worst fears.

7 In great alarm for his wife's safety, he rushed to Sergeant McGaffney at the nearest precinct. What had happened to his pretty young wife? All clues needed for the solution are in the pictures above.

SOLUTION: After a few questions about Lois's bedroom and her apparent state of mind, Sergeant McGaffney felt it was hardly necessary to send anyone to look over the premises. He recommended a Beautyrest Mattress and suggested that Lois might be found at her mother's. She was.

A mattress that won't let you sleep deeply upsets your nerves, can make you irritable and unhappy

MANY people like Lois Fuller behave very strangely and foolishly simply because their nervous systems are upset by loss of sleep.

Don't let it happen in your house—insist on a Simmons Beautyrest. Simmons Beautyrest is scientifically constructed to let you sleep. Its 837 separate coils instantly adjust themselves to your body. See how it feels to sleep deeply, calmly, and wake up with nerves and muscles fully rested. Let Beautyrest do this for you. The cost is only 2½¢ a day!

Any leading store will show you the Beautyrest at $39.50; Beautyrest Box Spring to match, $39.50; Beautyrest Hair Mattress, $59.50; Ace Coil Spring, only $19.75. Simmons Company, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Ill.

"An elflike quality and vivaciousness," says Bachrach, "give beauty to Margaret Hepburn, the actress' sister."

"Wholesome reliability and lovely eyes characterize the beauty of Margaret McAdam of Hastings-on-Hudson."

"Sweetness of expression in a classic cameo type puts Ann Brown, Boston heiress, in a class by herself."

Founder of Bachrach was David, father of Louis Fabian, among whose pictures is one of Lincoln at Gettysburg.

"Beauty and brains show clearly in the photograph of Doris Roberts of Tewksbury, Mass., a schoolteacher."

"All-round American girl and good sport, with informal features," says Bachrach, "is Bette Ryder, Washington, D.C."

"Madeleine Carroll type is Carol Svensson, of Boston." Bachrach thinks Miss Carroll the most beautiful actress.

SPEAKING OF PICTURES . . .

. . . THESE ARE BACHRACH'S BEAUTIES

Photos © Bachrach

When LIFE, in its issue of Feb. 14, went to a party at the Bachelor Club in St. Louis, it was reminded of the existence of the most historic U. S. beauty belt. This region, LIFE said, "starts at Baltimore, runs west along the old Chesapeake & Ohio canal, passes through Louisville and ends at St. Louis." Response to this statement was lively and sometimes bitter but the rebuttals were not specific enough to be persuasive. Finally, however, there has come a disputant with convincing examples.

The examples are the lovelies on these pages, submitted by Louis Fabian Bachrach (inset above), head of the 70-year-old firm of Bachrach. Bachrach, whose headquarters are in Newton, Mass., in what once was the plant of the Stanley Steamer, takes thousands of portrait photographs of young American women every year as they make debuts, announce betrothals, get married or serve on committees. The firm's work is familiar to all society pages. Mr. Bachrach feels that LIFE neglected an important beauty belt—one which also starts at Baltimore but instead of going west, goes north to Boston.

As evidence he submits these Atlantic seaboard beauties. The reasons for considering them beautiful, given in the picture captions, are his own. Mr. Bachrach is no dogmatist. "Beauty," he admits, "is a matter of opinion." He says old American stock breeds the best beauties; that Philadelphia is the real centre of U. S. pulchritude; and that Detroit and Cleveland have fewest beauties per capita.

"Pixie eyebrows, wide forehead and beautiful hair give attractiveness to Billee Heath of Bradford, Mass."

"Wide eyebrows lend an intellectual quality to the lovely face of Jane Fuller, Bryn Mawr, Pa., socialite."

"Budding youthfulness gives promise of greater beauty to come to Susan Dixon Pearson of Conshohocken, Pa."

"Piquant profile and deep, lucid eyes are main charms of Harriet Bontecou, a Millbrook, N. Y., socialite."

"Generations of breeding shine through the face of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., formerly Ethel du Pont."

"Ingenuous friendliness shows in the pretty, pleasant face of Betty Downing of Pittsburgh, college student."

"Character and intelligence," says Bachrach, "are reflected in the face of Ruth Ward, Washington, D. C."

"Grave simplicity, sweetness and grace endow the face of Nancy Elms of Wilmington, Del., with great charm."

"A typical Philadelphia beauty" is Jane Boothby of Chestnut Hill, who makes her debut next October.

NEW TIRE SENSATION

REDUCES DANGER OF SKIDDING AS NEVER BEFORE. Here's the evidence.

Amazing Life-Saver Tread Gives You Quickest, Safest Stops on Wet, Slippery Roads

PEDESTRIANS darting in front of you! Cars coming from every angle! Hairpin curves looming ahead! When you're driving on slippery, rain-drenched roads think what you'd give to turn the wet road under your car into a "dry" track. That's exactly what this new Silvertown Life-Saver Tread does . . . because every inch of this new wider, flatter tread is specially designed to DRY the road . . . give you the quickest non-skid stops you've ever seen!

In exhaustive road tests by the impartial Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory, largest independent testing laboratory in the country, against regular and premium-priced tires of America's six largest tire manufacturers, no tire tested, regardless of price, came up to the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown in non-skid action!

Go to your Goodrich dealer or Goodrich Silvertown Store for a free demonstration that will give you one of the greatest motoring thrills you've ever had.

And remember, this new skid-protected Goodrich Silvertown also has the famous Golden Ply blow-out protection. Thus you get two great life-saving features—AT NO EXTRA COST!—to say nothing of 19.1% greater non-skid tire mileage—which is the same as saying you'll get EVERY 6TH MILE FREE!

"BOTH regular, and also the premium-priced tires of America's six largest tire manufacturers were submitted to a series of exhaustive road tests made over a three months' period by us to determine their resistance to skidding and wear, with the following results:

"NON-SKID—The new Goodrich Silvertown with the Life-Saver Tread gave greater skid resistance than any other tire tested including those tires listed from 40% to 70% higher in price.

"MILEAGE—The Goodrich Silvertown gave more non-skid mileage than any of the other tires tested in its own price range—averaged 19.1% more miles before the tires wore smooth.

"BLOW-OUT PROTECTION—Despite the severe nature of these tests, no Silvertown blew out, or failed from any cause, while two tires of other makes failed."

A. R. ELLIS, Pres.
PITTSBURGH TESTING LABORATORY

2 LIFE-SAVING FEATURES . . . AT NO EXTRA COST!

ACTS LIKE A BATTERY OF WINDSHIELD WIPERS

The never-ending spiral bars of the Life-Saver Tread, found only on the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown, act like a battery of windshield wipers, sweep the water right and left—force it out through the deep drainage grooves—make a dry track for the rubber to grip.

GIVES YOU GOLDEN PLY BLOW-OUT PROTECTION

Every new Goodrich Safety Silvertown is constructed with the now famous Golden Ply, a layer of special rubber and full-floating cords, scientifically treated to resist internal tire heat. By resisting this heat, the Golden Ply gives you and your family real protection against dangerous high-speed blow-outs.

MATILDA: There! That's why the bride's having plenty of grief, Susan—look what's in her box of groceries!

SUSAN: Never mind, Matilda, pick up your skirt and run! I don't think that dog likes old ladies.

MATILDA: But, Susan, you know it's that weak-kneed soap the bride buys that leaves dirt sticking in her clothes. She'll never get rid of tattle-tale gray—if we don't show her the right kind of soap to use.

SUSAN: But the dog!

MATILDA: Don't be a 'fraidy-cat—I'll take care of the dog. You take that lazy soap out of the bride's groceries and put in our bar of Fels-Naptha Soap.

SUSAN: Nice doggie! We're only trying to be helpful. We're only trying to show the bride how to get whiter washes.

MATILDA: Yes, doggie. Fels-Naptha's richer golden soap and lots of naptha get clothes so clean, tattle-tale gray simply has to scamper.

LIFE'S PICTURES

Gustave Doré, whose Bible drawings appear on pages 48 & 49, was born in Strasbourg and began his career as a caricaturist on Parisian journals at the age of 16. Although he never took a lesson in his life, he became during 35 years of prodigious labor the ablest book illustrator of all time. His stirring pictures illuminate the pages of Cervantes, Dante, Rabelais, Balzac, Milton, the Bible. When he died at the age of 51 he had earned the acclaim of all literate people and the sum of $1,500,000.

The following list, page by page, shows the source from which each picture in this issue was gathered. Where a single page is indebted to several sources credit is recorded picture by picture (left to right, top to bottom), and line by line (lines separated by dashes), unless otherwise specified.

LIFE'S COVER: Paulette Goddard, who is generally supposed to be Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, has been Palm Beach's girl-of-the-winter. A constant string of admirers has been dazzled both by her puxish charm and by her long fingernails, which extend nearly an inch beyond her fingertips. When one of them broke recently, she carried it in a sling. Once the favored candidate for the role of Scarlett O'Hara in Gone With the Wind, she is now apparently out of the running. Back in Hollywood, she has just accepted a role in another picture.

1. It was at MacFarland's I fir-r-st tasted it. MacFarland's Annie brought it on, all steamin' and fillin' the room with a heaven-like fragrance. "Hae a cup of this Sanka Coffee, laddie," says MacFarland. "Taste it—then I'll tell you a secret about it."

2. I know I shouldna take it. Coffee at night keeps me eyes wide. But I've no more strength than a hare when it comes to resistin' the precious brew. And mon, was that Sanka Coffee good! It touched the spot like porridge on a misty morn.

3. "All right," says MacFarland, "here's the secret I promised you. The caffein is taken oot of that Sanka Coffee." My face fell when I hear-r-d that. "I dinna like it," says I. "Why should they take somethin' oot of the coffee I pay for? 'Tis a sly trick."

4. Says MacFarland, "And I suppose when you buy roses you insist on thorns to prick your fingers. Mon, they're doin' you a favor. It's caffein keeps some folks awake. After this night, you'll be tickled they take the caffein oot of Sanka Coffee."

5. Next mor-nin' when I woke up, I understood. Two br-rimmin' cups o' coffee I had the night before—yet I slept like a bairn. That's because they had taken oot the caffein. Ah, a gr-r-and idea—a ver-r-y gr-r-and idea.

"HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES BY DEMOCRATIC VOTES REPUDIATES THE PRESIDENT"

Here is history, great history, in the making. The scene would be unthinkable in one of Europe's dictatorships where dummy legislators in uniform sit tense in massed array. These carelessly-dressed men, lounging in a near-empty chamber, are the Representatives of the People of the United States in Congress assembled. The day is April 7. One of the critical hours in the history of the House is drawing near. Debate on the President's Reorganization Bill is almost over. In the well of the House, Democrat Sam Pettengill of Indiana harangues his colleagues against it.

Next day, debate was finished. The President's leaders had made the issue plain. "We ought not to send out to Americans," pleaded Majority Leader Sam Rayburn of Texas, "the message that tonight Democrats voting with Republicans have voted and said in effect that our President is no longer the leader of his country."

"If you recommit the bill," cried Speaker Bankhead, "you will say: 'The House of Representatives by Democratic votes repudiates the President of the United States.'"

The roll was called. For five minutes Representatives sat breathless while tellers cast up their totals. Then Speaker Bankhead announced the result. The bill was killed, 204-to-196. One hundred and eight Democrats had joined Republicans to vote "no confidence" in the leader of their Party.

Why?

The bill itself was a simple measure aimed to let the Chief Executive of the U. S. introduce a little businesslike order into his cluttered administrative setup. When President Roosevelt first asked for these powers, on a far greater scale, in January 1937, the nation turned not a hair. But when an emasculated bill reached the Senate last month, the President's critics set up a cry that he was trying to make himself a dictator. Father Coughlin roared by radio. Publisher Hearst screamed in headlines. Dorothy Thompson and Hugh Johnson beat a martial charge in their newspaper columns.

The result was a frenzy of fear, expressed in such astonishing excesses as the sending of 333,000 telegrams to Congressmen urging votes against the bill. President Roosevelt felt impelled to issue an extraordinary statement protesting that he did not want to be a dictator, in fact lacked the qualifications to be a successful one. In reply, Representative Robison of Kentucky rose in the House and solemnly warned: "History records that Julius Caesar thrice refused a crown. . . ."

The Dictatorship issue seemed a patent sham which Roosevelt foes, out to beat him on every front, were using to play on the people's fears. BUT the fact remains that they could not have been successful if the people had not had real fears to play on. Those fears were what beat the bill and President.

John O'Connor of New York City (right), leader of the fight against the Reorganization Bill, talks with a "Pia Revere" who "rode" against it on April 6. Congressman O'Connor bears a grudge because President Roosevelt kept him from the House Speakership two years ago.

FACES OF CONGRESSIONAL REVOLT

32 of the 108 Democrats who voted No

These are the faces of 32 Democratic Congressmen, chosen at random from the 108 who refused to give the President the reorganization powers he asked.

Right or wrong, it took courage to do that. Though Mr. Roosevelt's prestige is shaken, he is still President—master of patronage and projects. He is still Party leader—master of the machine whose help every one of these men will need for reelection next November. And he is not a forgiving man.

One motive of the Congressional revolt against the President, which began with the Court Plan fight last year, is long accumulated resentment at personal and collective slights and snubs and high-handed treatment from the White House. Another is the plain fact that conservative Southern Democrats never have liked the New Deal. But the prime source of Congressmen's courage would seem to be their constituents' fears.

Some of it is genuine if misguided fear of dictatorship. But most of it is fear for jobs and savings in the 1930s Depression. Business blames the new Depression on their fear of the President. Judging by their Representatives' votes, plain people are beginning to share that fear, and a Congress friendly to business has found courage to reassert its legislative supremacy.

SPEAKING OF DICTATORS

some comical resemblances

Dictators charm the opposite sex and shake their fingers at audiences. So does President Roosevelt. Dictators scratch their heads, encourage youth, go swimming. So does President Roosevelt. Dictators make dramatic gestures, shake hands with their admirers, pat animals. So does President Roosevelt.

Which goes to show that Europe's modern despots, as compared with their aloof predecessors, have remarkably democratic manners. But to argue from the funny resemblances in these pictures that President Roosevelt wants to become Dictator of the United States would be as silly as some of the yawps in the Reorganization rumpus.

The qualifications which make a successful dictator are simply those which make a successful mass leader. The essential difference between a dictatorship and a democracy is not in the leader, but in those led. Dictatorship rises not in the ambitions of a man, but in the despair of a people. If America gets a dictatorship it will not be because Franklin Roosevelt or any other man schemes it. It will be because the American people lose confidence in the ability of their political and business leaders to make life in a machine age bearable for men.

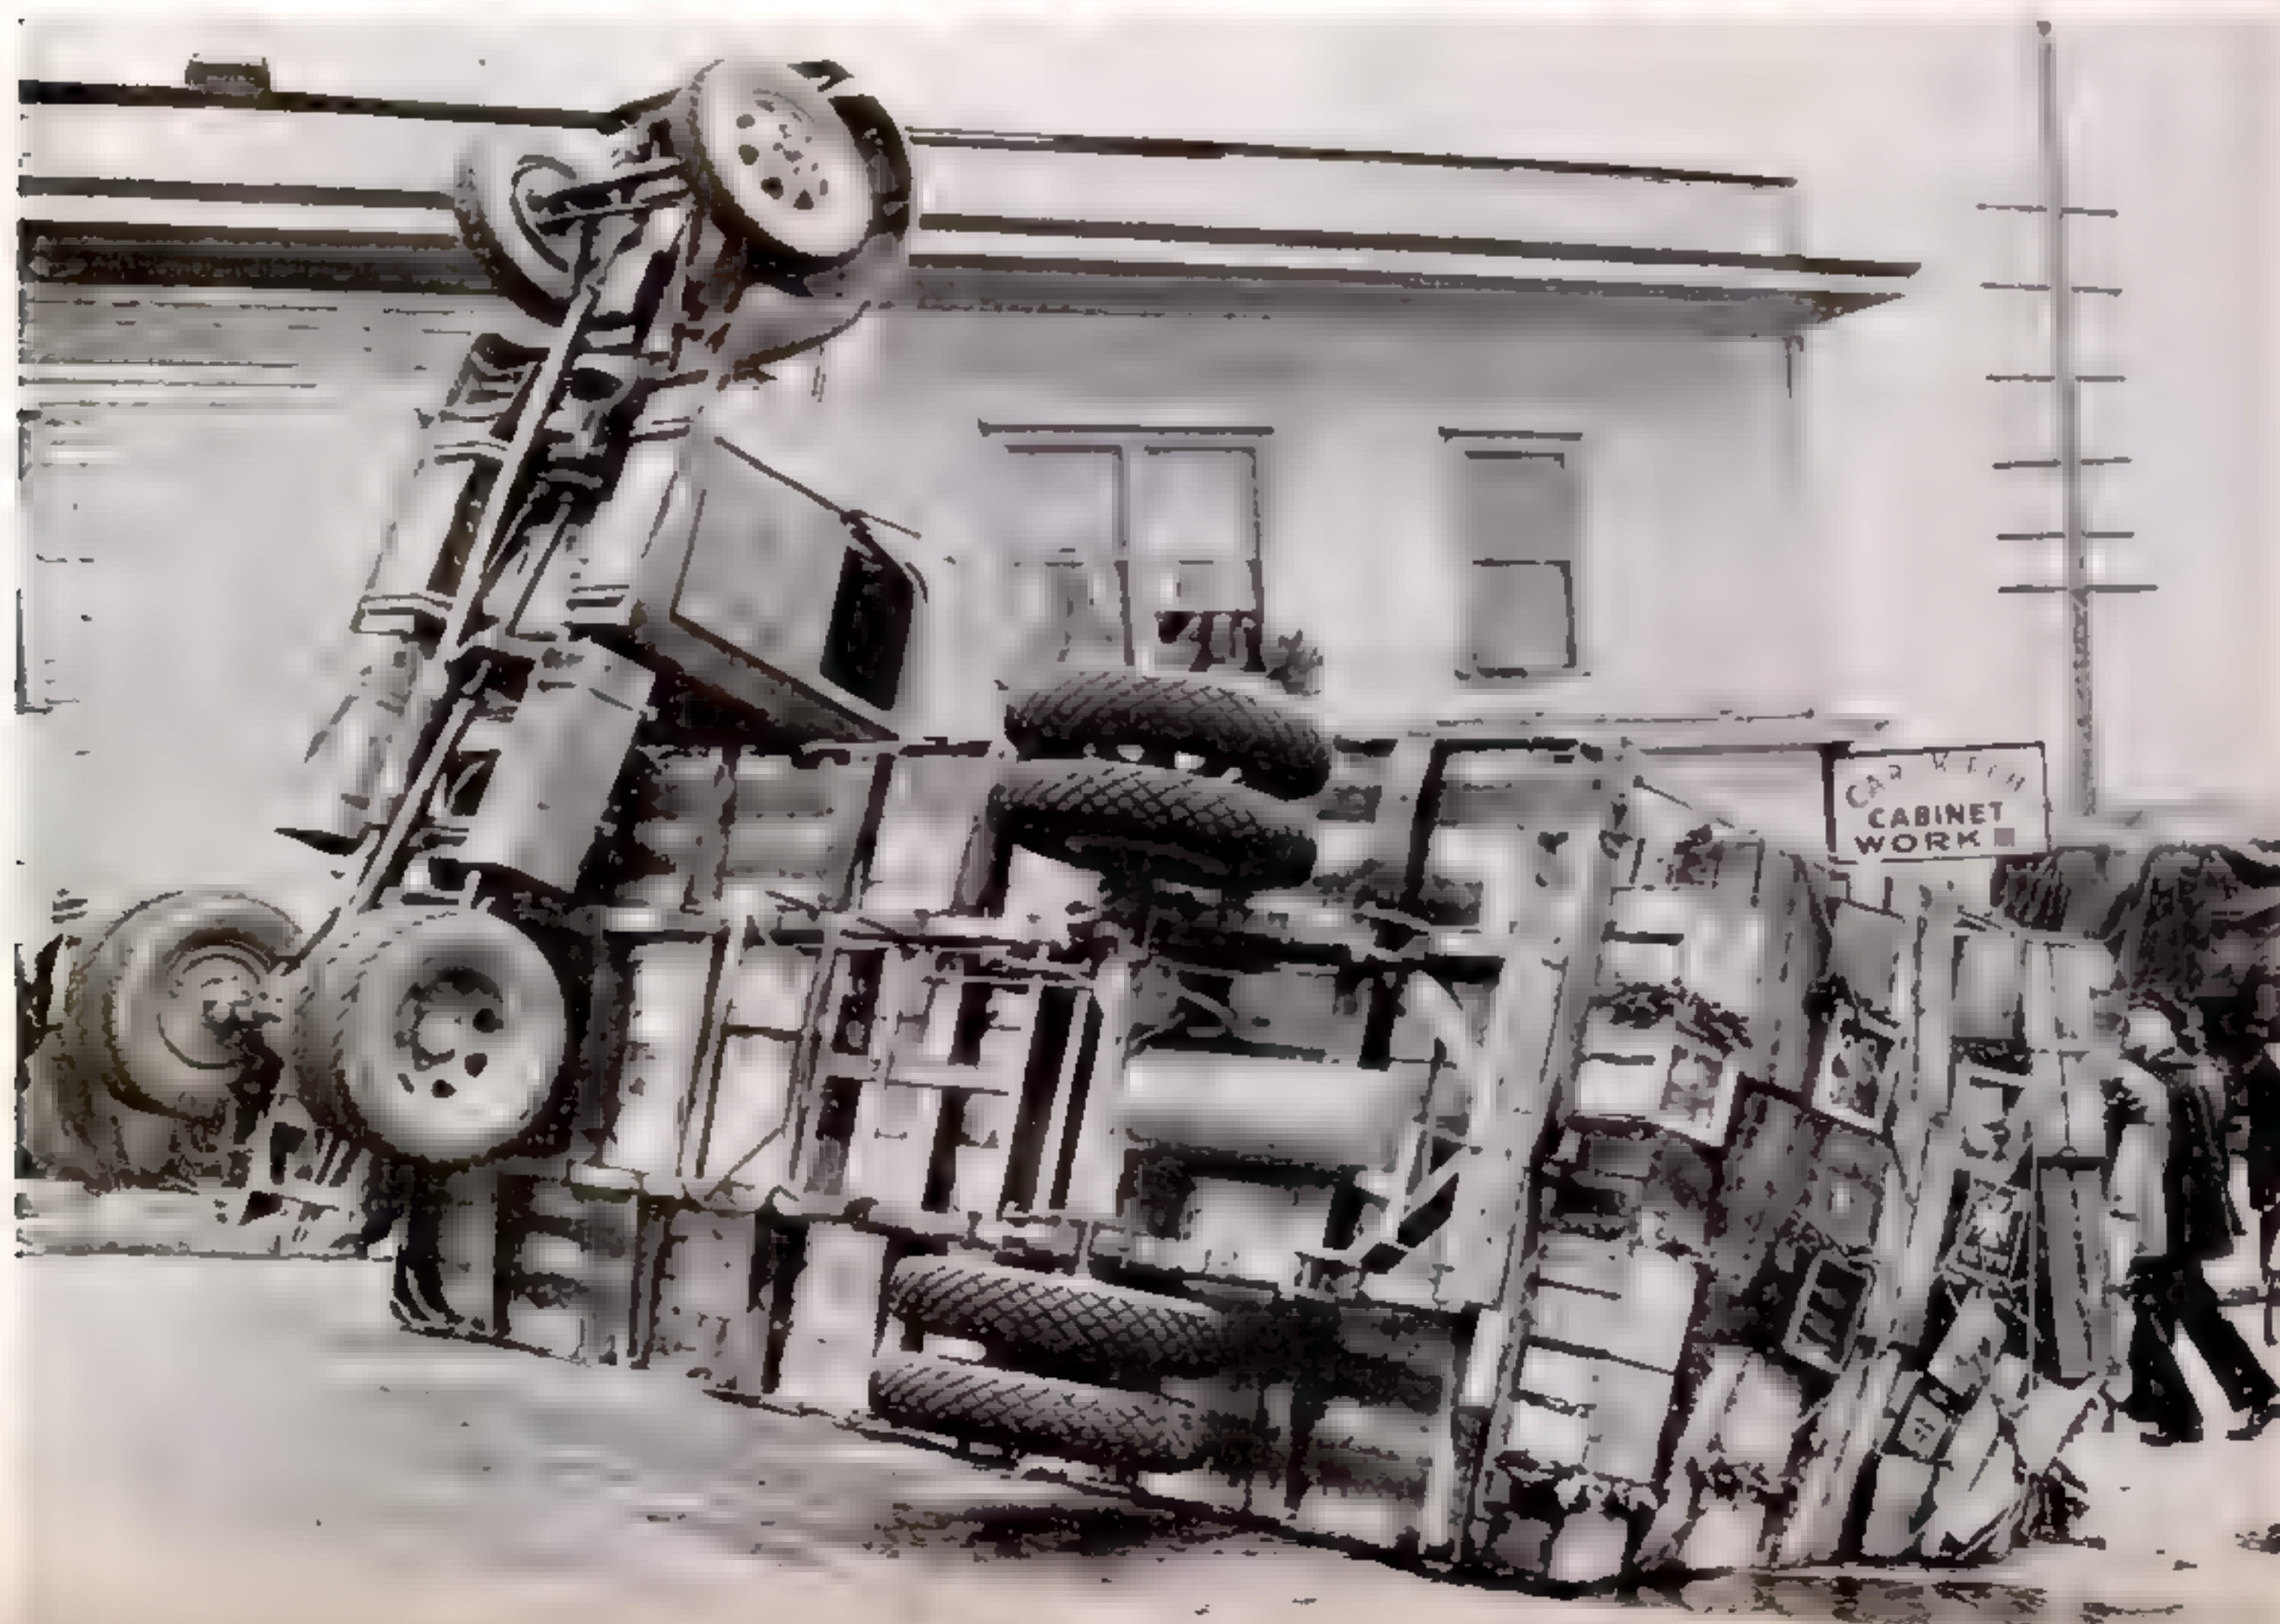

STEEL BUSINESS

In Hoboken, N. J., on April 4, Myron C. Taylor, 64, chairman of U. S. Steel since 1932, bade farewell to 800 stockholders, handed his post to smart young Edward H. Steinhilber, 37. In his report, big Myron Taylor announced Big Steel had done a business of $6,950,000,000 from 1928-1937. Unannounced went the sad fact that the nation's steel production is now running along at only 30% of capacity.

SPINACH BUSINESS

The spinach business took an upset in Seattle on March 31 when this motor truck, loaded with green roughage for Canadian children, failed to climb a hill, tumbled turtle, waved adieu to trees in the air. No longer uncontested as vitamin king of the vegetable world, spinach nevertheless anticipates a receptive 1938 market. The U. S. leads all nations in spinach production. Texas leads all states.

CAR BUSINESS

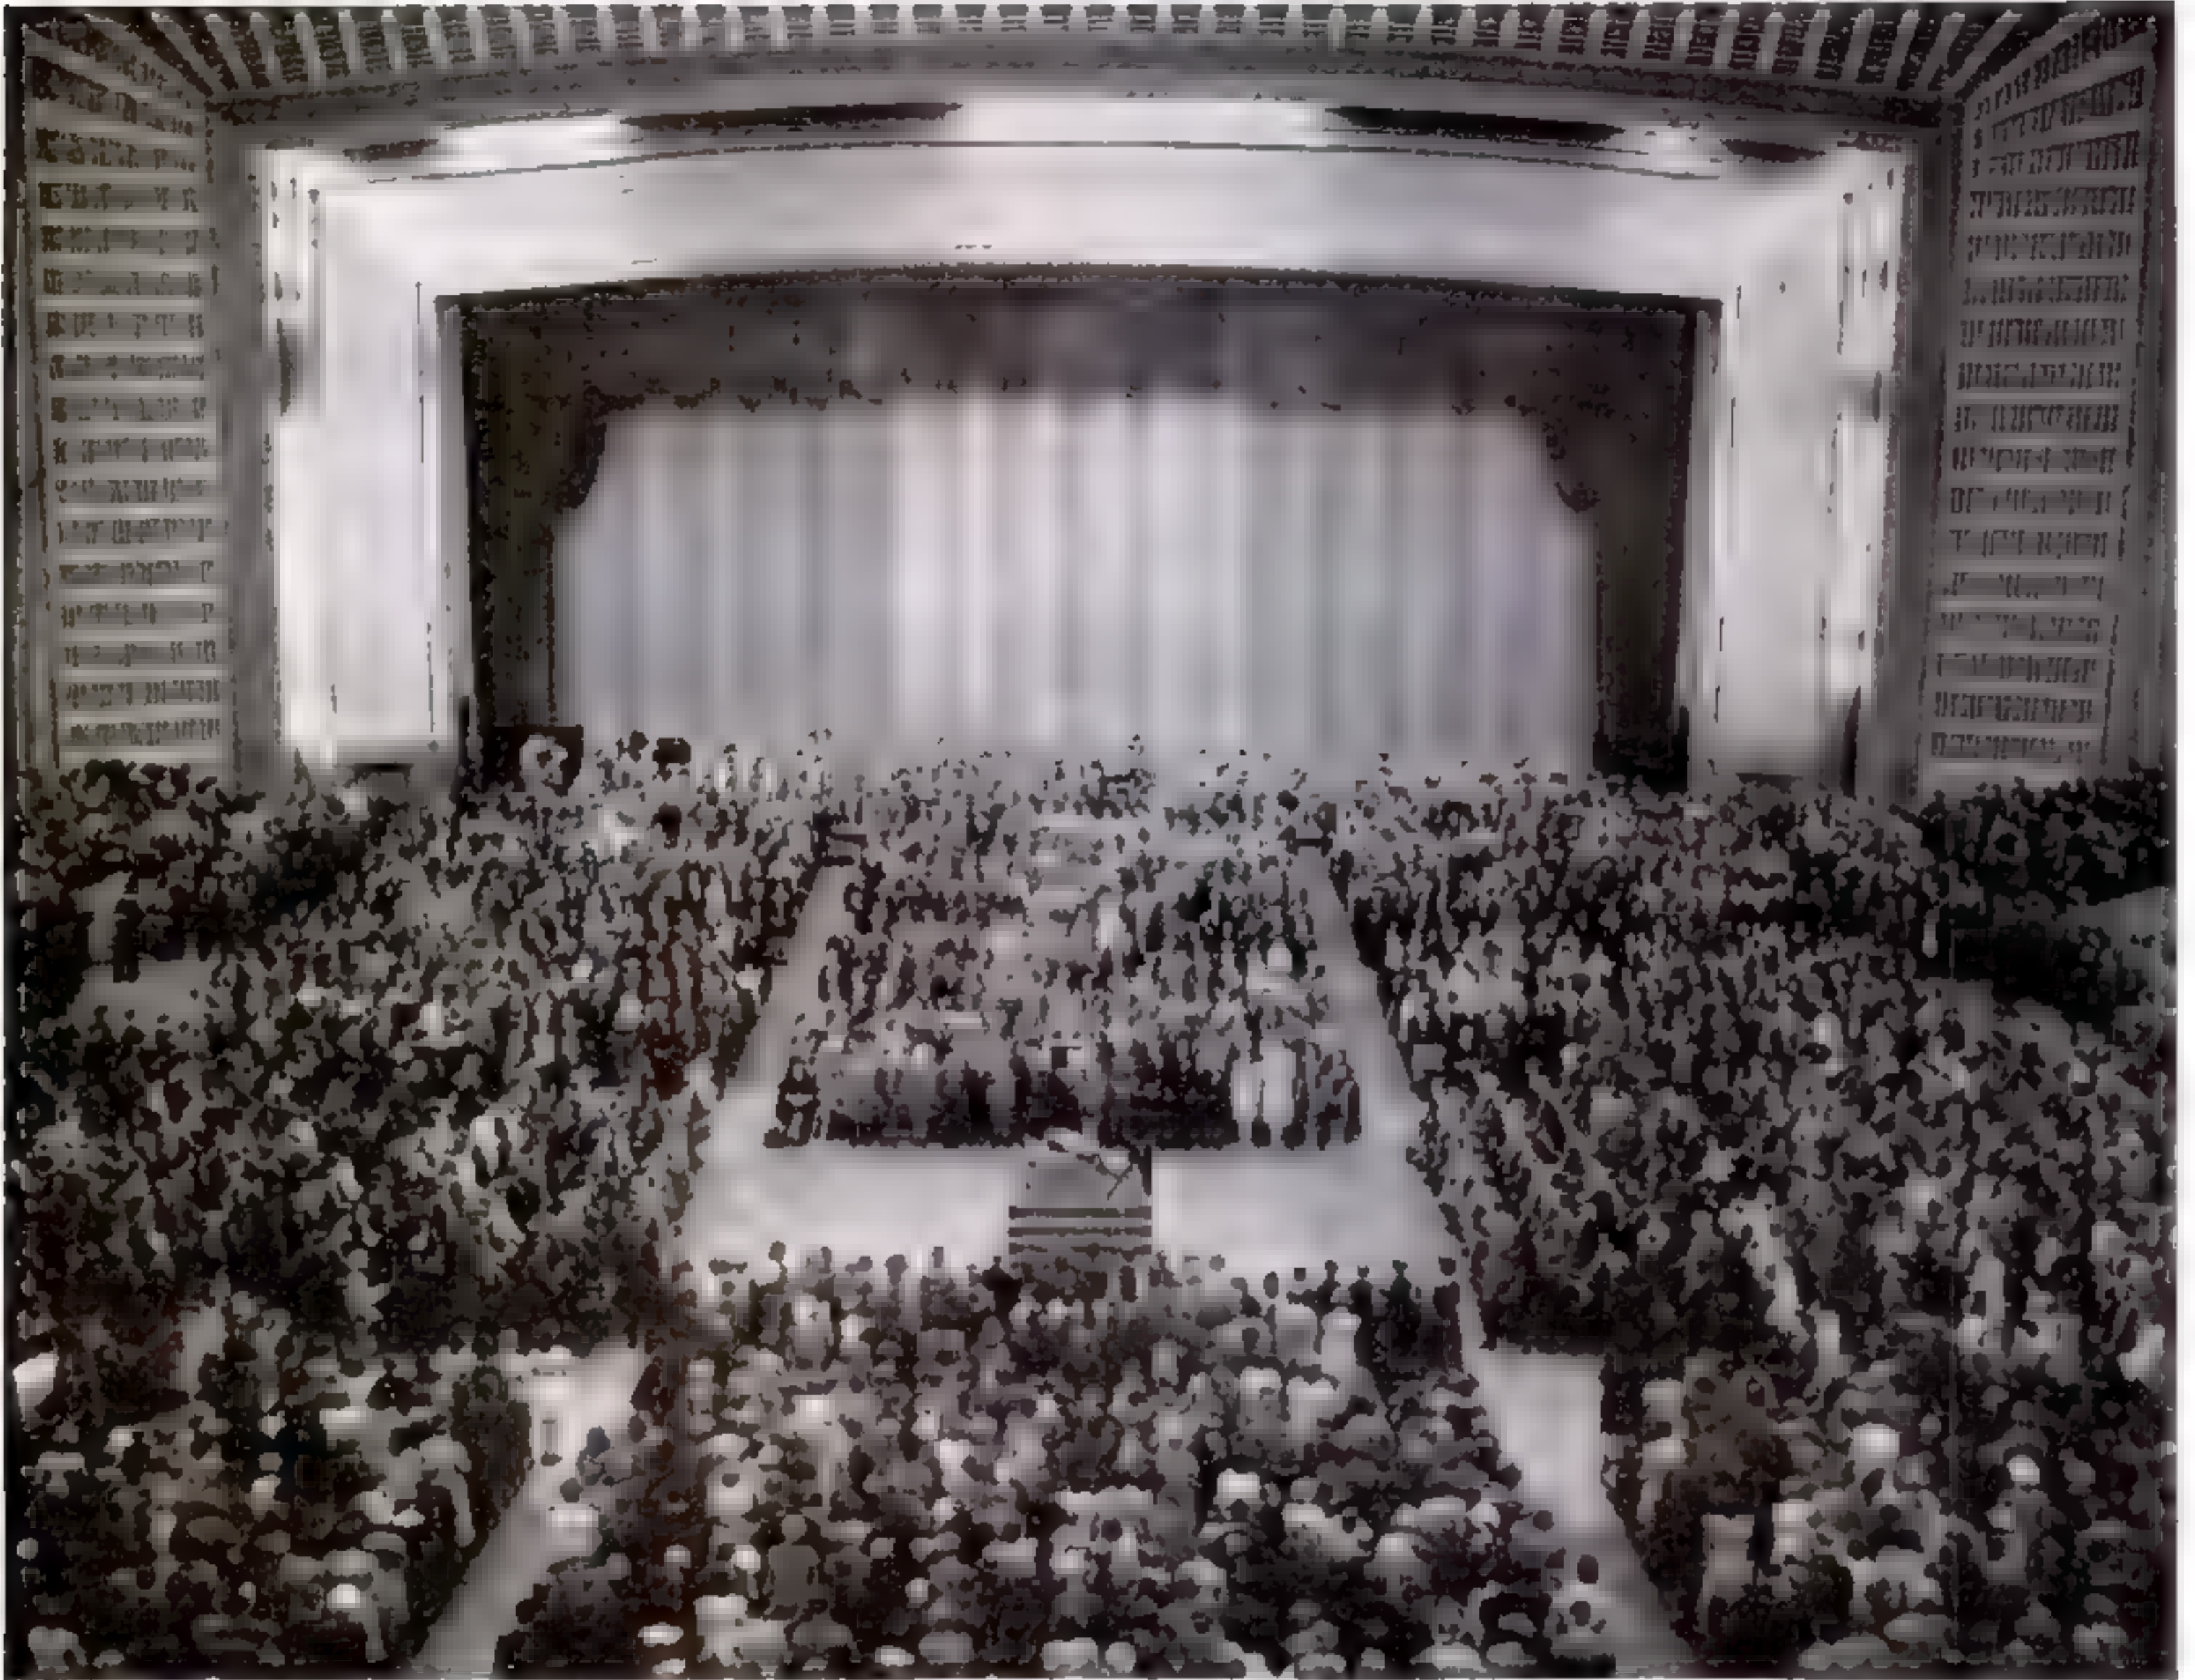

Automobile production is 55% of its 1937 spring index. Two cities hardest hit are Detroit and Cleveland. From Detroit to Cleveland on April 1 sailed the freighter South Park whose Captain Clyde M. Tolson once again was opening the Great Lakes shipping season. First to cross Lake Erie in 1938, Captain Tolson brought with him 228 new Chryslers and Plymouths, productions for a good year on the lakes.

FARM BUSINESS

In Lake Dick, Ark., 35 men and 70 mules broke ground April 8 for spring planting on a Government farm project. On other projects, on farms, on plantations from coast to coast, 10,000,000 U. S. farmers were getting ready in various ways to welcome another spring. Depression has not yet reached the agricultural States. Farmers wondered if its effects would be offset by good crops in 1938, good prices.

IN ST. LOUIS 6,000 MUSIC TEACHERS HEAR 9,000 CHILD MUSICIANS

THE 9,000 SCHOOLCHILDREN IN THIS GREAT CHOIR CAME FROM 80 MISSOURI COUNTIES TO SING AT THE TEACHERS' CONVENTION

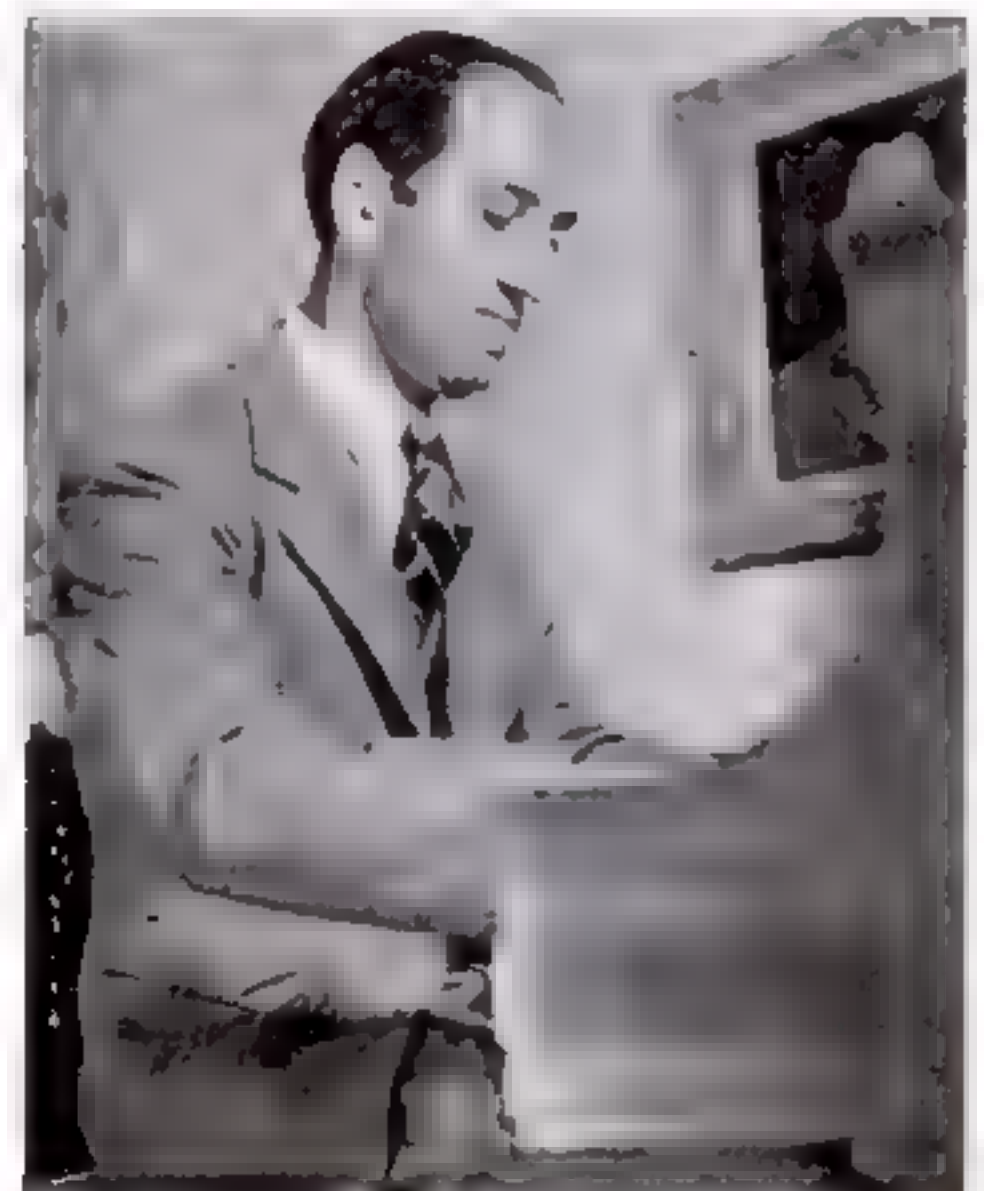

Educators seek ways to train future Beethovens and Bachs

To the classic three R's of the American school-house has been added a fourth. It is Rhythm. Over half the nation's 30,000,000 schoolchildren now get free musical instruction. Over 80,000 U. S. schools now have bands or orchestras. Though most of these tyro fiddlers and flutists are between 8 and 16 years old, some are only 3 or 4. Annual State and national tournaments spur them on competitively. Though sometimes they play popular music by Gershwin or Friml, they prefer the classics, with Beethoven and Haydn in the lead. In some cities like Pittsburgh, they are even taught to compose.

On March 28, 6,000 of their teachers met in the St. Louis Municipal Auditorium for the Music Educators National Conference. For five days the educators discussed the best way to teach and encourage young Americans who may someday rank with Bach and Brahms. Meanwhile, 9,000 musicians from schools in 15 States played symphonies, sang cantatas, re-enacted the history of folk music.

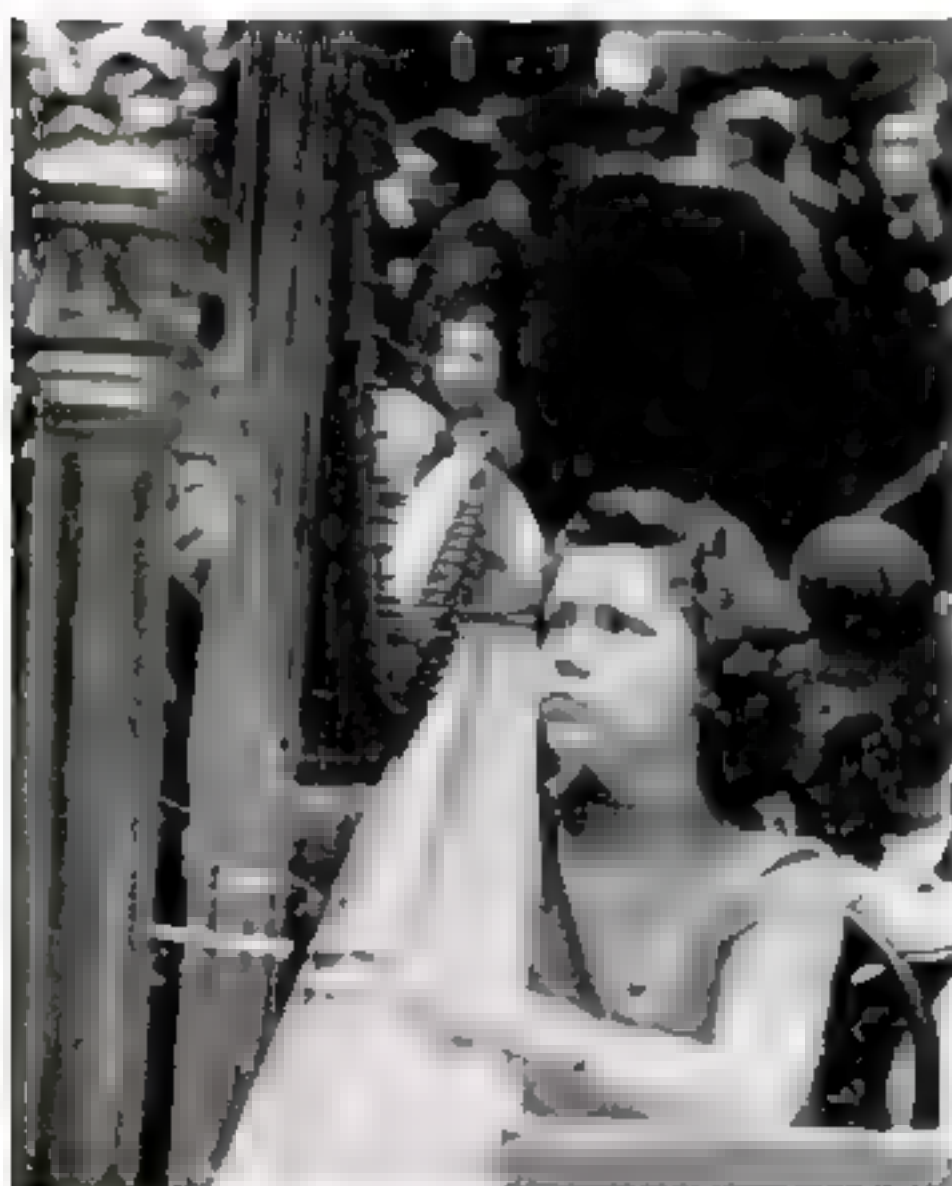

George Handel (1685-1759), German composer famed for his Messiah, was played at the convention by a harmonica band.

George Gershwin (1898-1937), American composer famed for Rhapsody in Blue, was played in the folk-music pageant.

FROM THE HEART OF THE MISSOURI OZARKS CAME THIS SCHOOL ORCHESTRA OF 100 CHILDREN TO FIDDLE AWAY IN ST. LOUIS

This determined young harpist is a member of the National High School Orchestra which performed at the convention.

This sturdy young flutist was picked in national scholastic competition to play with the All-American school band.

This anxious young clarinetist and his placid companion hold high ratings among America's aspiring school musicians.

FRENCH LABOR GETS A CHARTER

Workers strike while employers balk at law

A great peace between Capital and Labor is being fought out in France while Cabinets fall. On March 1 some 7,000 labor contracts came up for renewal for the first time since the 40-hour week became law in June, 1936. They were allowed to hang fire while the Popular Front Government jammed through a compromise Modern Labor Charter. This provides for collective bargaining, for pay raises with cost of living rises, for State arbitration of hiring and firing.

But the Charter has no enforcing teeth. Employers insisted that Depression required pay cuts, workers insisted that rising costs compelled pay raises. Thus on March 24, repudiating their own negotiators, 15,000 workers in the Paris Citroen "Ford of France" works went on sit down strike se-tele, were soon followed by 20 other plants.

Notably lacking, however, was the revolutionary enthusiasm of the June 1936 strikes. Workers even booed their No. 1 leader, Leon Jouhaux left, secretary of the General Confederation of Labor, for not persuading the French Government to rescue Loyalist Spain. Through all this Popular Front Premier Leon Blum leaded for a fall by trying to get emergency powers from the reactionary Senate, fell April 8.

Leon Jouhaux (pronounced Yo-ho), French labor boss of 5,000,000 workers, told 12,000 Paris Leftists March 18 that they must help Loyalist Spain, rearm and that the workers could prevent war.

Communist Leader Marcel Cachin above snapped the feigning posturing sitters at the Trovadero Theatre out of their apathy but Austrian Leftist von Hegnerscher below plunged them back into it.

Strikers, 15,000 strong sitting down in Paris Citroen auto plant the factory March 24, were entertained in the plant by this Spanish Communist guitar player.

Amateur theatricals at the Citroen works kept strikers coming to the factory for over two weeks. Most went home for meals while pickets paced the plant.

Perennial strikers of Paris are the clerks of the great Magasin du Printemps on the Boulevard Haussmann whose 16-day strike in June 1936 broke Paris employers' resistance.

A strike meeting crowds the same scene as at upper left with embattled Printemps store employees listening to speakers. They struck on last December for another pay raise.

FIRST ALL-AMERICAN HORSE WINS THE GRAND NATIONAL AT AINTREE

The winner, Battleship little son of Man o' War, is first horse bred, owned and ridden by Americans to win the Liverpool Grand National on Liverpool's famous Aintree course.

The owner, Mrs. Marion In Paul Scott, a well-known actress, is the wife of Movie Actor Randolph Scott who used to play cowboy parts. She is here shown arriving in New York April 4.

AT BECHER'S BROOK: AMERICA'S BATTLESHIP (RIGHT), IRELAND'S ROYAL DANIELI AND AMERICA'S DELACHANCE WHO FINISHED ONE, TWO, FIVE

The toughest horse race in the world is supposed to be Britain's Grand National, 4½ miles, twice around the Aintree track whose three stiffest jumps are Becher's Brook (shown on this page), the Canal Turn and Valentine's Brook. Of these the toughest is Becher's, named for a gentleman rider who was the first to "taste the water" of Becher's when his horse threw him 92 years ago.

This year 30 horses started. Thirteen finished with their riders, dodging another riderless half dozen. One died of a broken back. The Becher's Brook jump mowed them down like a machine gun. All three pictures on these pages were taken within a few seconds, on the second time around the course. Notice that the man in the picture above has moved but a few steps in the picture below.

The leading horse above is Battleship, one of the two littlest horses ever to win and the first all-American horse. Battleship held his position over the Canal Turn and Valentine's, then fell behind on the easier jumps. At the last fence he had caught up again. A riderless horse cut across the two finishers, each in turn. Battleship and Royal Danieli, running on opposite sides of the track, finished almost neck and neck. But the judges decided Battleship had won by a head.

THE AUSTRIANS LEARN TO DO THE NAZI SALUTE

Austrian peasant woman bends her creaking joints into the Nazi salute. She and 90% of Austria are Catholic. The Germans are Protestant and Hitler is a non-confessing Catholic.

Hitler's old schoolteacher, Professor Huemmer of Lins, amiably indulges his old pupil with a left-handed Nazi salute. For this picture he put on his coat, collar and tie.

The mountain men of Austria are unimpressed by Göring

The mountain people of the Austrian Tyrol always disagree with the last man who has spoken. For that reason most of them opposed the dictatorship of Schuschnigg, mildly supported the Nazis. But for the same reason they now view the 100% Nazification of Austria with a cold, glum eye. Today Western Austria shows little Nazi enthusiasm, "except among children." "Of course we wanted Anschluss," said one to a New York Times correspondent, "but of our own free will—not with Nazis and not like this."

Even Tyrolese Nazis admitted they had never expected to be completely swallowed up by Germany. For Austrians cannot look up to Hitler, who is himself an Austrian. His taking over Austria is something like the union of Scotland and England after a Scot, James I, became King of England.

On March 26 the No. 2 German Nazi, Field Marshal Hermann Göring, roared into Vienna, reviewed a detachment of German police (opposite page), heard shouts of "Hermann! Hermann!" and made a speech for the plebiscite on Anschluss April 10. In Tyrolese cafés the mountaineers clapped a little when he mentioned employment, otherwise looked at the radio with dour antagonism. Some observers expected that Austria may become the centre of an underground anti-Nazi movement infecting all of Greater Germany.

Mountaineers in the Tyrol, the toughest individualists in all Greater Germany get their hands up in progressive stages of the salute as two booted Prussians pass. Notice the oldsters' characteristic mountain hats and jackets.

Sigrid Gurie: Flatbush to Xanadu

This is Sigrid Gurie in full regalia as the Princess Kukachin, lovely daughter of the mighty Mongol emperor, Kublai

Khan. Miss Gurie progressed from Flatbush, N. Y., to Norway and now to a Hollywood version of fabulous Xanadu.

"THE FLOWER OF FLATBUSH" MAKES GOOD

Sigrid Gurie loves Gary Cooper in "Marco Polo"

Sigrid Gurie is the young lady who, a few weeks back, was being hailed by Samuel Goldwyn as "the siren of the fjords." Mr. Goldwyn's picture of a new Norwegian Garbo was badly jolted in March when Miss Gurie filed suit for divorce from a hitherto unsuspected husband. It speedily became known that not only was she married to an American luggage-maker, but that her birthplace, far from romantic Norway, was the Flatbush section of Brooklyn, N. Y. The stunned Mr. Goldwyn recovered in time to snatch victory from defeat by proclaiming "the greatest hoax in movie history."

Miss Gurie, "the Flower of Flatbush," makes her debut as Gary Cooper's leading lady in The Adventures of Marco Polo, a $2,000,000 concoction of melodramatic Hollywood hokum. She is Princess Kukachin, daughter of Kublai Khan.

Sigrid Gurie was born in this modest house in Flatbush on May 18, 1914.

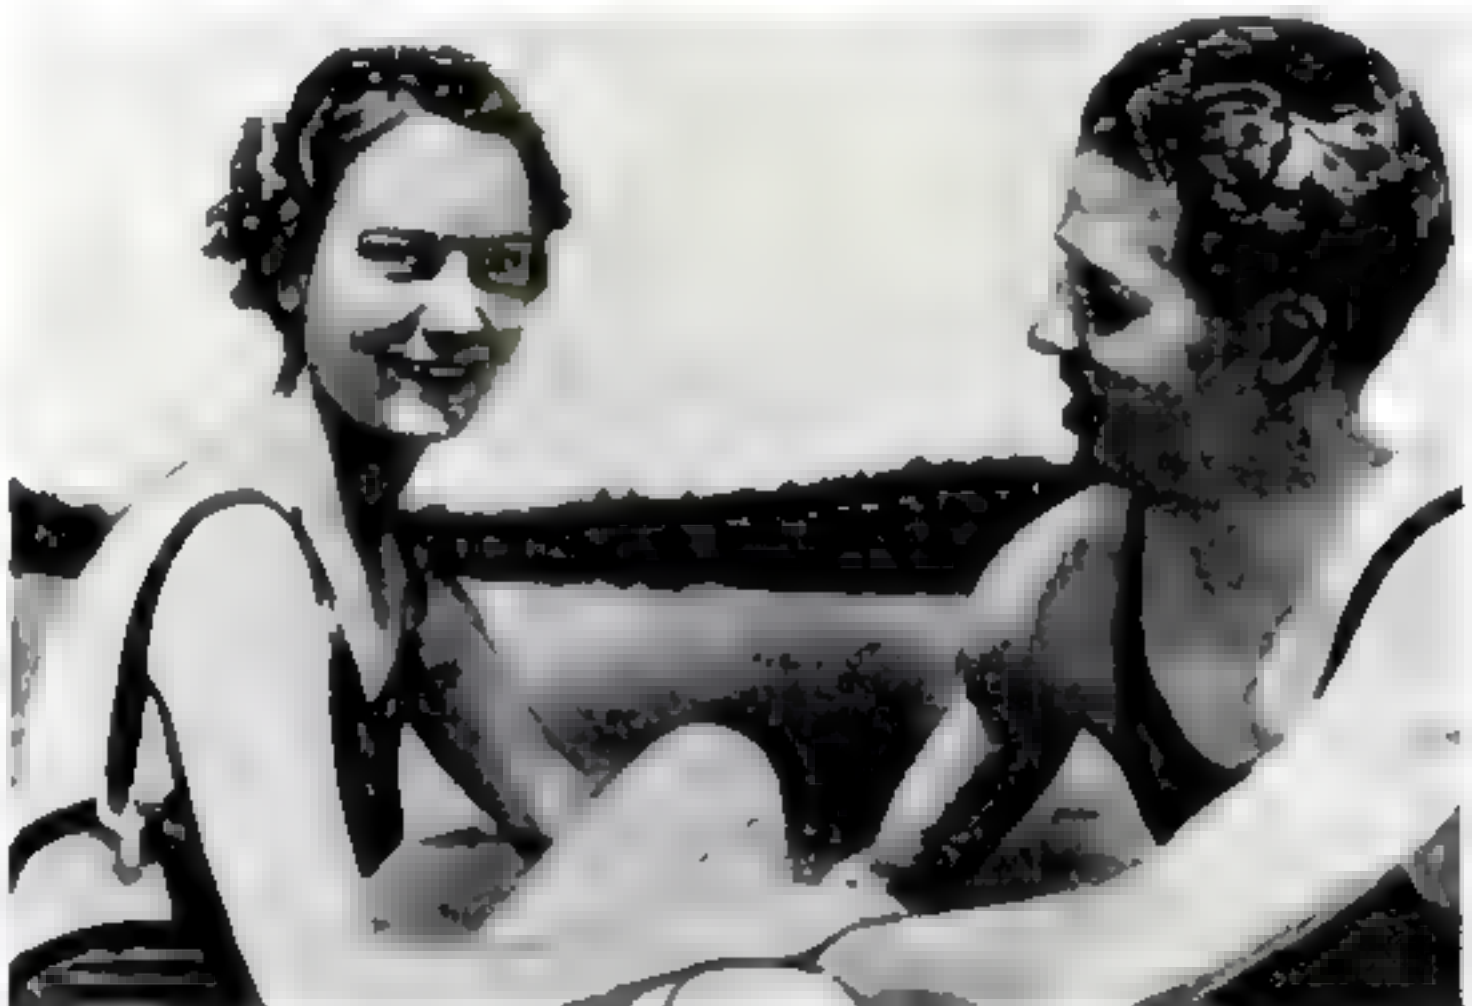

She grew up in Norway, however, with her twin brother Knut. She was 6 when this snap was taken.

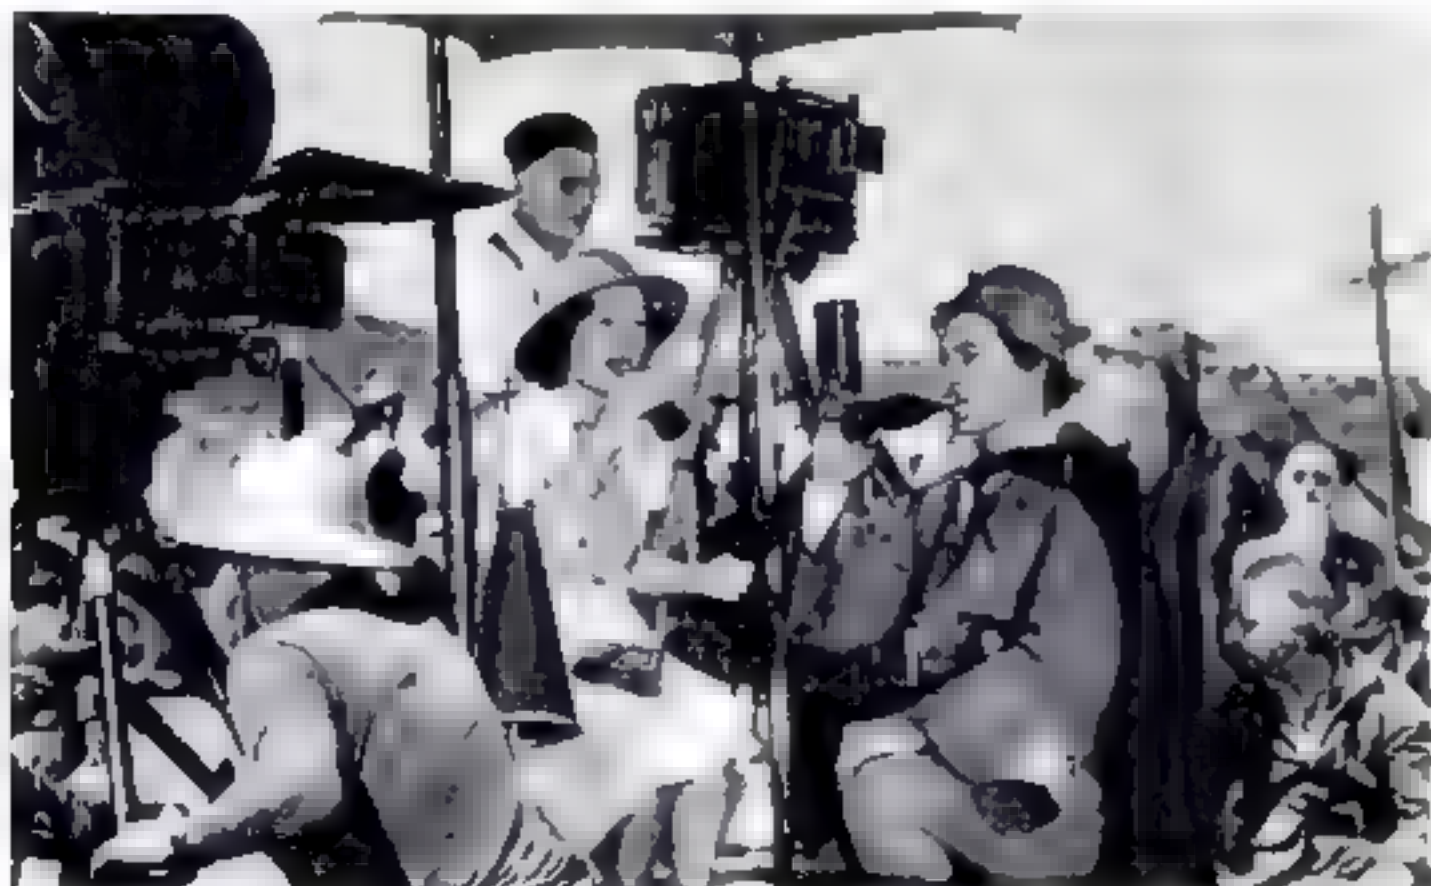

SIGRID GURIE AS GLAMORIZED BY THE GOLDWYN STUDIO

"The siren of the fjords" sits on the rocky edge of the Oslo fjord. Though born in Flatbush, Miss Gurie was taken to Norway at the age of 3, stayed there until she was 20.

She was married in 1935, shortly after her arrival in the U. S., to Thomas Stewart, a California luggage-maker. This picture was made on their honeymoon at Lake Arrowhead.

On the Marco Polo set, Miss Gurie drinks a Coca-Cola with Gary Cooper. Throughout the production of the picture, she was kept in seclusion, forbidden to visit nightspots.

Miss Gurie's director was Archie Mayo, who is here seen with the newest thing in Hollywood yea-men. Mr. Mayo has an assistant whose duty is to scratch the director's plump back.

At the court of Kublai Khan, Marco Polo finds the great Emperor reigning amid Hollywood magnificence. The movie is only slightly based on the travels of the real Marco Polo, a 13th Century merchant of Venice who journeyed to the Orient, wrote of his adventures.

Marco Polo makes love to the Khan's daughter, Princess Kukachin (Sigrd Gurie) and later teaches her the Western art of kissing, as shown in LIFE, Feb. 7. Meanwhile the Khan's jealous Prime Minister (Basil Rathbone) is preparing unspeakable tortures for Marco.

The walls of Peking, Kublai Khan's capital (above), are stormed by the troops of a vassal prince (below) Marco Polo is as full of climax and anticlimax as an old-style Western melodrama. The mighty Khan, whom Marco Polo has crossed two continents to behold, turns out to be George Barbier, well-known portrayer of bumbling American businessmen. After a dozen hairbreadth escapes, Marco leads a Mongol army against Peking, pushes the villainous Prime Minister into a pit of his own lions and marries the beautiful princess.

THE JAPANESE SLEEP AT THE FEET OF CHINA'S GODS

Rest for Nanking's conquerors

The old gods of old China here look down upon four little Japanese soldiers, one with a flag, dozing at their feet. These are the same soldiers who through last Christmas and New Year's treated Nanking, China's captured capital, to the most appalling mass atrocities since Genghis Khan. They raped Chinese women by thousands, bayoneted and burned unarmed Chinese men alive in equal numbers, suffered the inevitable loss of morale. Since then the Japanese have been stopped and defeated by the Chinese.

WHILE AN INDIAN PRINCELING TAKES UP THE KORAN

"O Lord, in thy presence I begin."

Prince Walashan Colonel Mukaram Jah Bahadur, the little boy on the throne dais of Hyderabad, is the only grandson of the Nizam of Hyderabad (left, mustache and spectacles), "richest man in the world," and son of the Nizam's heir (left, black turban). The Moslem service is Bismillah in which the child begins to read the Koran. Kneeling beside the throne is his mother, Princess of Berar, beautiful eldest daughter of Turkey's ex-Sultan and Caliph Abdul Medjid II. Her son may someday be a Caliph himself.

FANNIE BRICE, BILLY ROSE'S MONA LISA, CONTEMPLATES A DIVORCE

This Neapolitan lady is not the Mona Lisa in the Paris Louvre. She is Fannie Brice, greatest of U. S. comediennes, painted in the Leonardo da Vinci pose by Artist John Decker. What makes the picture more than just an effective burlesque is the fact that it adorns the New York office of her husband, Billy Rose.

The second catch in the picture is that Billy Rose won't be her husband long. On her New York arrival from Hollywood, April 5, to defend herself in a $34,000 suit brought by an agent, Miss Brice announced that she would return to California to divorce the diminutive showman who is ten years her junior and wants to marry Eleanor Holm, swimming beauty. From Fannie Brice came four crisp comments: 1) "To me, now he's just nothing," 2) "I don't know Miss Holm," 3) "That wouldn't be the Rose I know, to come across with that kind of [settlement] money," 4) "So now my third marriage ends and believe me, dearie, it's my last."

...with Beech-Nut

Manchester, Vermont
September 29, 1937

Mr. Bartlett Arkell, President
Beech-Nut Packing Company
Canajoharie, New York

My dear Mr. Arkell

For ever so long ... in fact ever since your little Beech-Nut Circus was in Manchester, and that is quite some time ago, I have been wanting to write you. And this morning as I sat at my desk, I suddenly thought again of the little circus. So I feel that I must stop what I am doing and tell you how much happiness you gave at least one little boy this summer.

I happened to glimpse the car as I passed the Equinox on my way from the library. And I flew home to send Clifford up with Bruce. But he had already gone with him. I can't even begin to tell you how much Bruce loved it. Oh, ever so much more than the real circus that I had taken him to see in June. For this was in miniature ... and children love things in miniature. Perhaps you have realized that. And even now, very often at bedtime I am entertained with an account of the beloved little circus.

Every child's face was a study in rapt attention! I wish that our schools could offer a subject so interesting! I know that surely you know that you are fortunate. You seem to grasp with both hands the opportunity to give. You are so wise. For long after worldly things about you are forgotten, your little circus will live in the hearts of these many little children who have loved it.

Bruce B. Graham
Mrs. Clifford Graham

HERE is a happy letter. It tells how we have delivered joy to the heart of a child in Vermont. Many thousand other children, too, have thrilled to the miniature marvels of the Beech-Nut Circus... the biggest little show on earth.

To grown-ups we promise to give you back an hour of your precious youth. And don't, please don't let your children miss it! We are sending out 12 of these rollicking, rolling circuses this year. This advertisement in store windows will tell you when there's one in your town.

Happiness in packages, too

Fine flavor doesn't just happen, it's a matter of intention, the result of someone's plan. Try Beech-Nut Peppermint Gum and you'll see how true this is.

Machinist Edgar T. Clewell, of Allentown, Pa., won the highest amateur award of 1937 when he carried off $1,500 in cash prizes with this picture of a neighbor's child, Joanne Flemming. News

This greatest news photograph of 1937 was made by International News cameraman Samuel Shere in the dusky twilight of May 6th, when the German Zeppelin Hindenburg, carrying 36 passengers, 61 officers and men, and a ton of mail and baggage, burst into flames while attempting to land at Lakehurst, N. J., and in 5 minutes was completely destroyed. The photograph, showing clearly the men on the mooring mast silhouetted against a cloud of fire, has that rare, stupendous quality which only a great catastrophe can create. Made on Eastman Film.

How a disaster led to the world's greatest tea!

*T*HERE'S A STORY in your cup of Lipton's Tea . . . a story that begins with a tragedy and ends with happiness for the people of seven great nations!

In 1870, Ceylon (then a great coffee-growing country) was hit by a blight that snuffed out the life of every last coffee plant on the island!

1. In the gloomy days that followed, a young Irishman named Thomas Lipton was a leader in a group that had a happy thought: Why not grow tea in this rich Ceylon soil and exceptionally gentle climate? Tea plants were imported and cultivated.

2. And lo and behold, Ceylon proved itself to be one of the world's greatest tea-growing spots! More flavorful tea had never sprung from Mother Earth! And appropriately enough, the finest of Ceylon's tea gardens are LIPTON'S.

3. With his own superb tea as a basis, Thomas Lipton mixed a blend so fine that it carried off top honors at five World's Fairs! And at the Great Tea Exposition of Ceylon and India, Lipton's own tea was awarded the Gold Medal. Sir Thomas became official "Tea Merchant By Appointment" to three Royal Families!

3. Yet, despite its superiority, Lipton's can be enjoyed in any home. That is because tea—even a tea as fine as Lipton's—costs less than any other beverage except water! Get a package of this superb LIPTON'S TEA from your grocer today!

LIPTON'S TEA

4. To understand how any one tea could win all these honors, you need only brew yourself a cup of Lipton's. Look at its rich promising color . . . inhale its clean, flowery aroma . . . raise the cup to your lips and get acquainted with that magnificent flavor. As a pleasant glow warms your innards, you will know that here is the most satisfying and stimulating tea you have ever met. No wonder the men and women of America—and of six other great tea-loving countries—drink more Lipton's than any other tea!

SANTA FE SUPER CHIEF: FASTEST THING ON WHEELS FROM CHICAGO TO LOS ANGELES

80 MILES AN HOUR FROM SUPER CHIEF CAB

Railroads today are facing the worst financial problems in their history. Close to one-third of all railroad mileage of Class I lines is in the hands of the courts. Causes and consequences of the situation are that the lines' physical assets are generally obsolete. Compared to other methods of transportation, the railroads have made relatively few improvements in the past decades.

A leader in the movement to modernize rail travel is the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway which in the last two months has put into service a fleet of twelve elegant, lightweight, streamlined trains. Three of these cover the Chicago-Los Angeles route in less than 40 hours. Swankest and most expensive on this run is the Super Chief II, shown on these pages. A joint product of General Motors, Pullman, and Edward G. Budd Manufacturing companies, its nine stainless-steel cars combine the furnishings and luxury of a hotel, drugstore, barbershop and restaurant at a minimum cost of about $100 per trip. Train is pulled by two 1,800-h p. Diesel-electric units geared to travel 117 m.p.h., accommodates only 120 passengers.

SANTA FE FLEET

Super Chief engineer rests in an upholstered adjustable seat. He keeps his foot continually on the "dead man control" pedal which automatically stops the train if his foot leaves it. The two wide windshields are equipped with sun visors, hot-air defrosters and wipers.

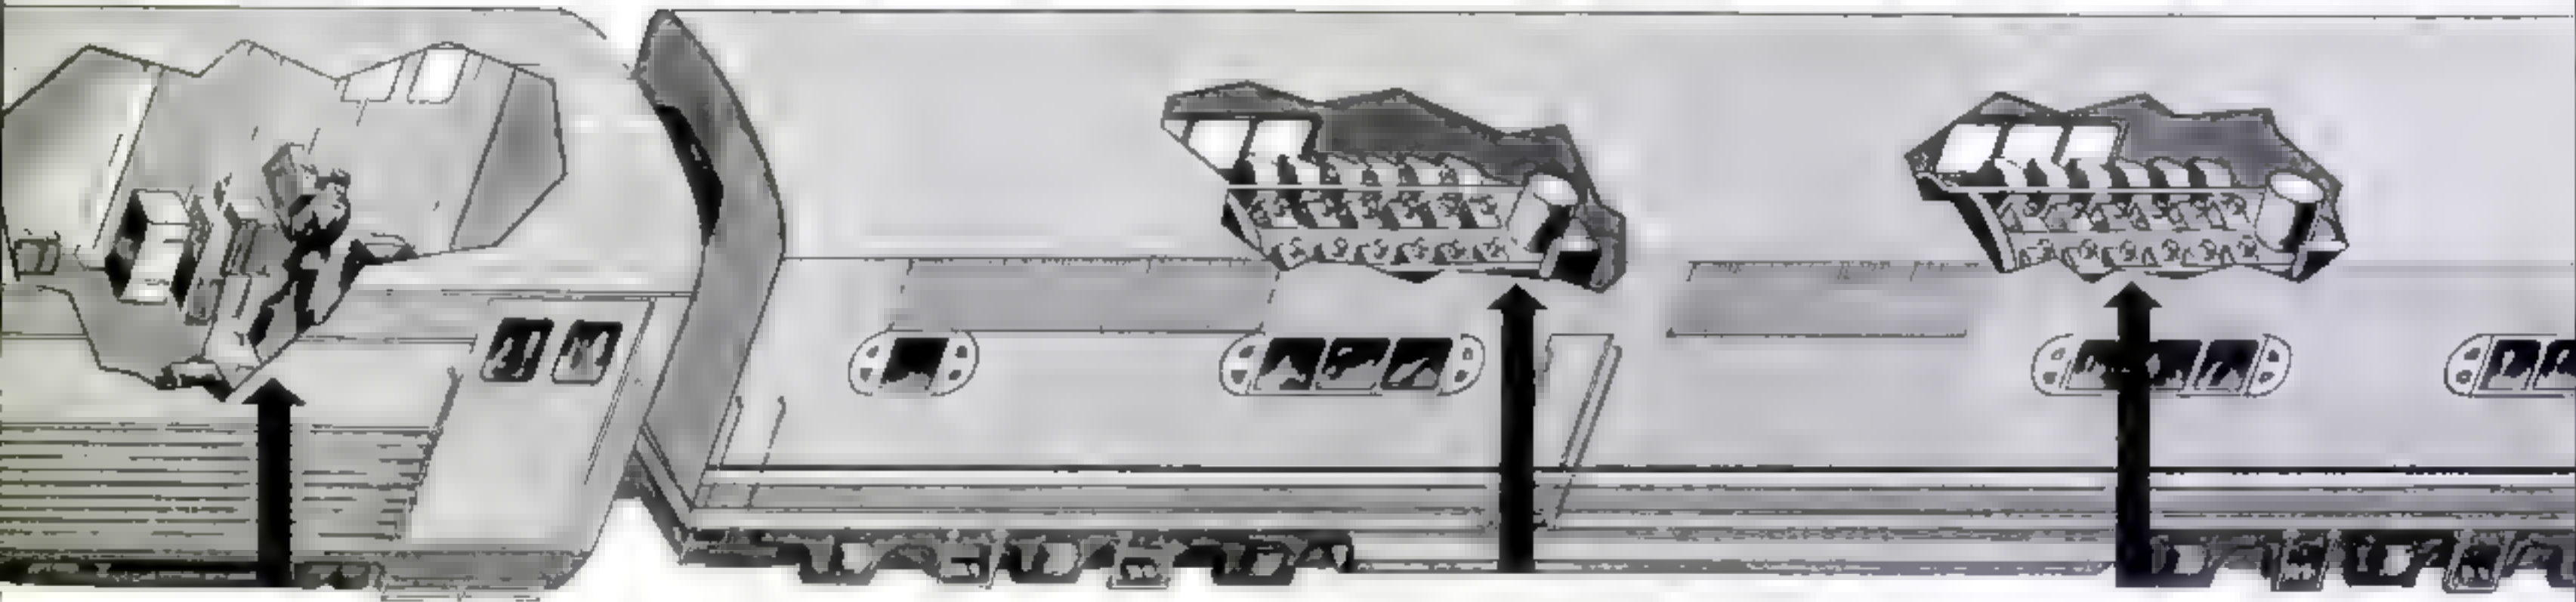

Pianist Moriz Rosenthal keeps his fingers limber by playing a portable silent practice piano installed across the seat in his compartment during one of the Super Chief's first trips last month. Mr. Rosenthal was on his way to Los Angeles where he was to give a concert.

IN THE SUPER CHIEF'S NINE CARS TRANSCONTINENTAL

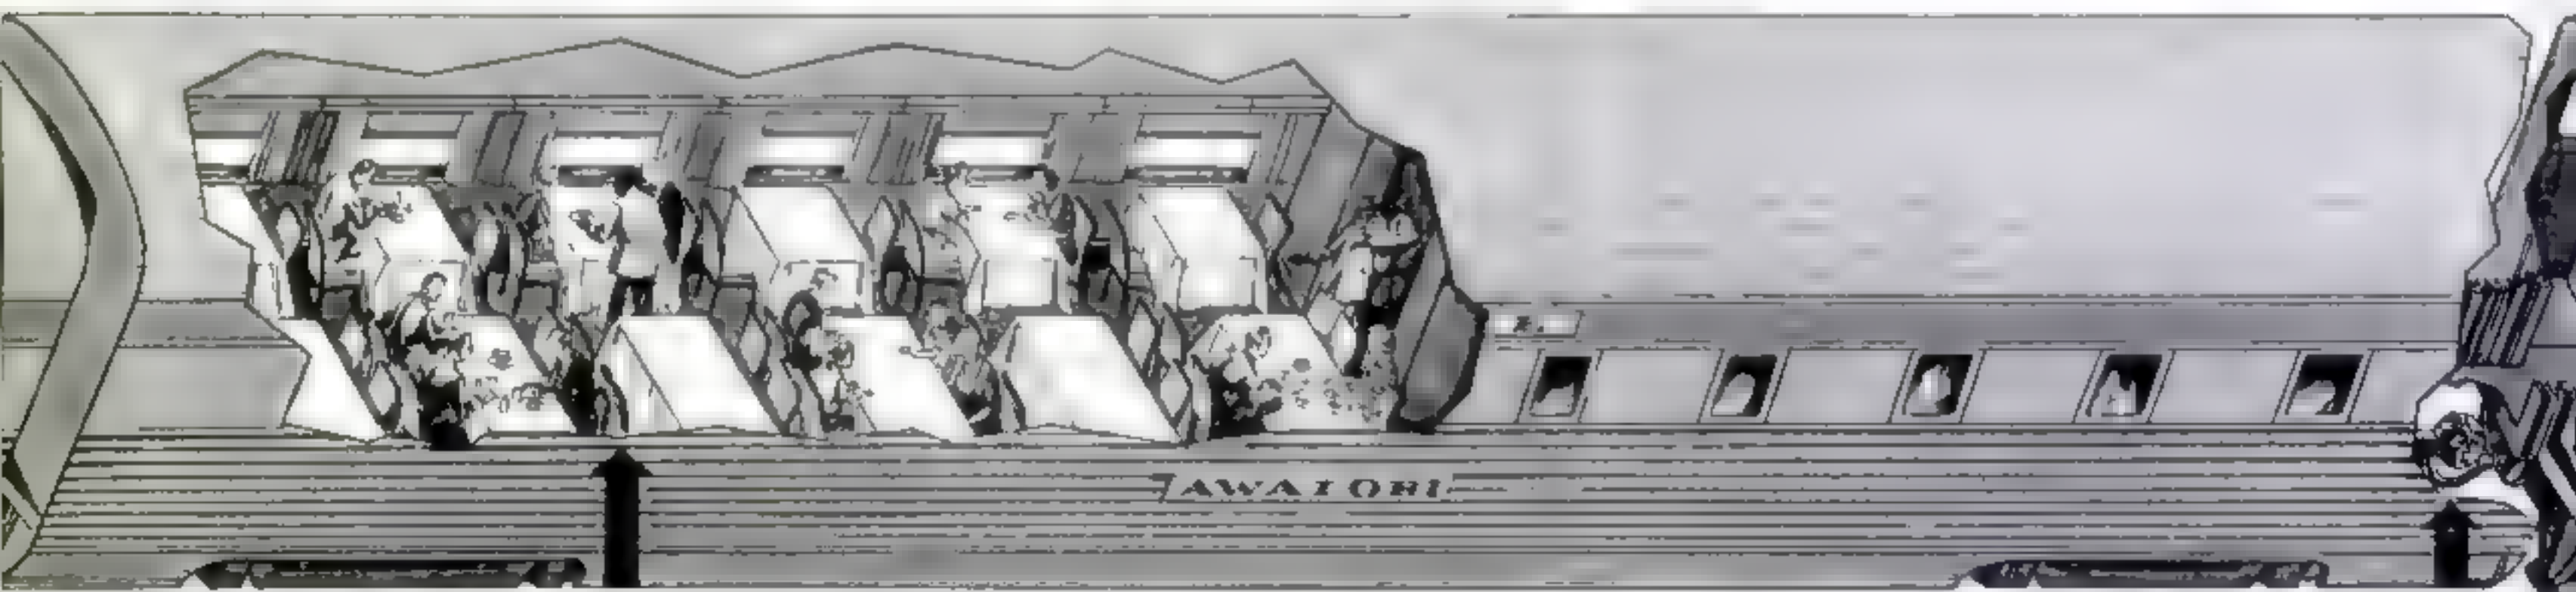

Baggage and linen are stored in the front part of the first car. Just aft of the baggage compartment are quarters for twelve members of the crew of 30. During the 30½-hour trip they sleep and work by shifts.

Second motive unit of the Super Chief's power plant is composed of two 900-h.p. Diesel-electric twelve-cylinder engines. The two motors in each unit are controlled simultaneously by the engineer in the cab.

Double bedrooms for families are made possible by sliding partitions. When the partition is removed, the two adjacent compartments form a large sitting room by day and can accommodate four sleepers at night.

Seventeen tiny roomettes, which give the privacy of individual rooms, are in the Chimayo. During the day the bed, washstand and wardrobe vanish into the walls, leaving space for the occupant and two guests.

The dining car seats 36 passengers, gives à la carte service (including caviar only). Cost of three meals a day averages around $4. Passengers can eat in their compartments at an extra cost of 25¢ per meal.

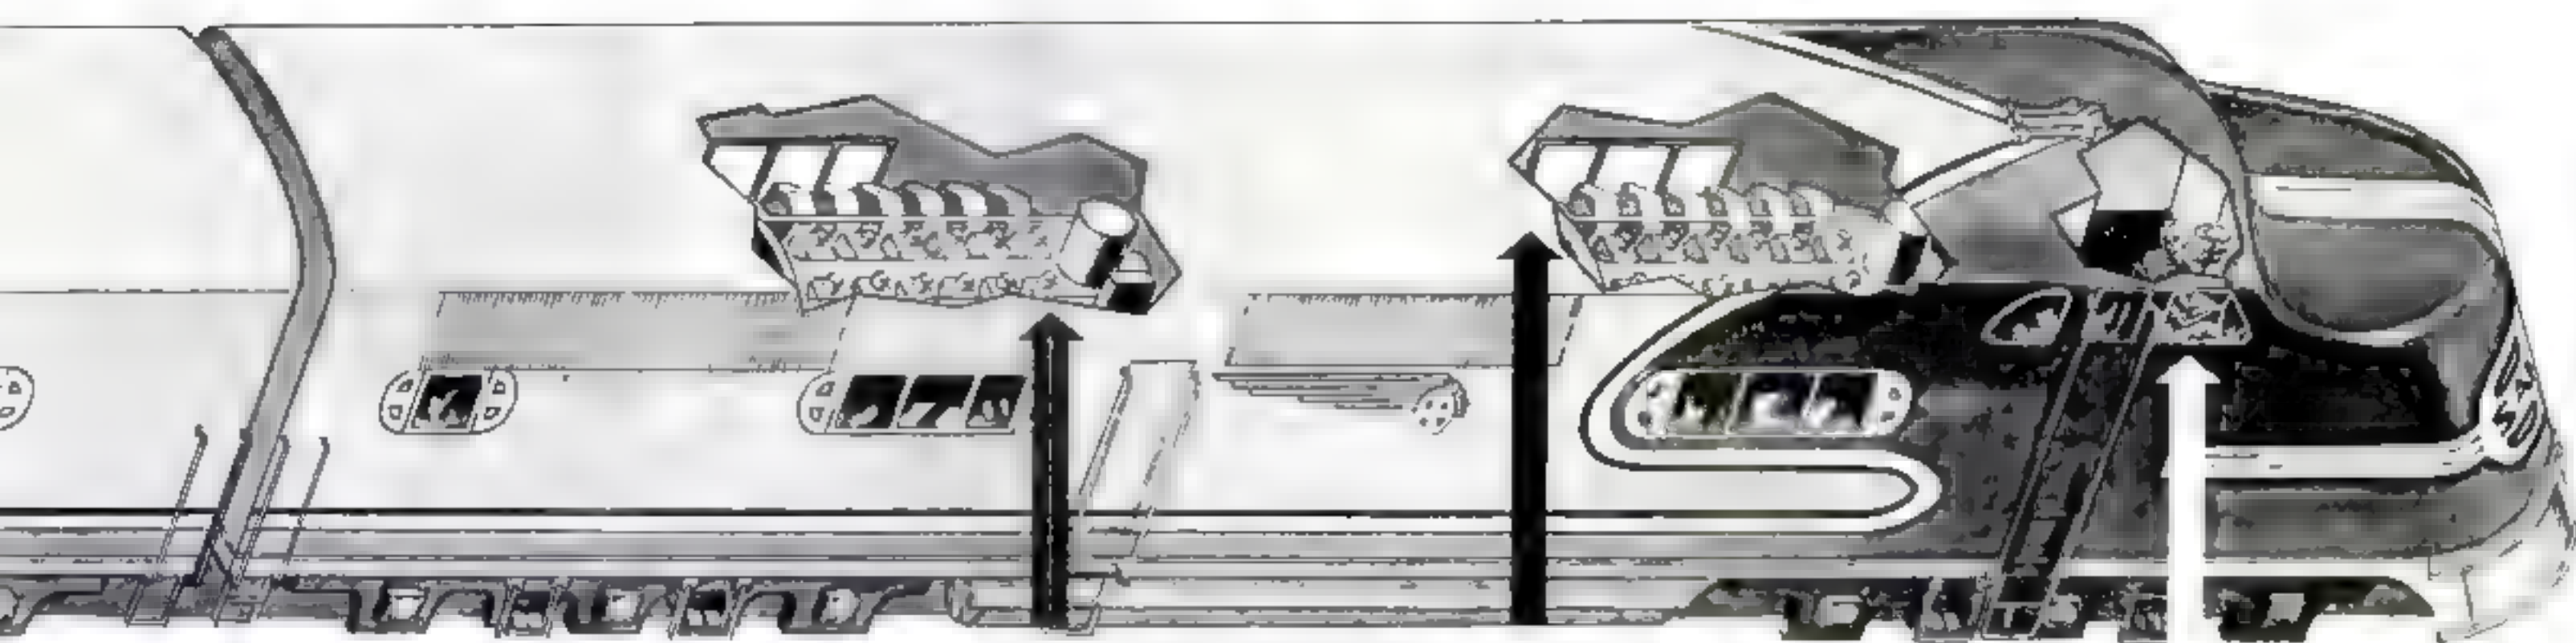

Improved couplers permit no slack, reduce shock when the train starts or stops. All the passenger cars are air-conditioned and all car bodies are insulated against noise from the trucks and against heat or cold.

Rounded observation car accommodates about 18 people. It is decorated in Navajo Indian style with a turquoise-blue ceiling, coral frieze panels and sand paintings. Passengers use it mostly for reading and writing.

Drawing rooms have two beds at right angles and on same level. When made up for day use they resemble small sitting rooms (left). They cost $56.15 and are the most expensive accommodations on the Super Chief.

TRAVELERS FIND EVERY FORM OF HOTEL COMFORT

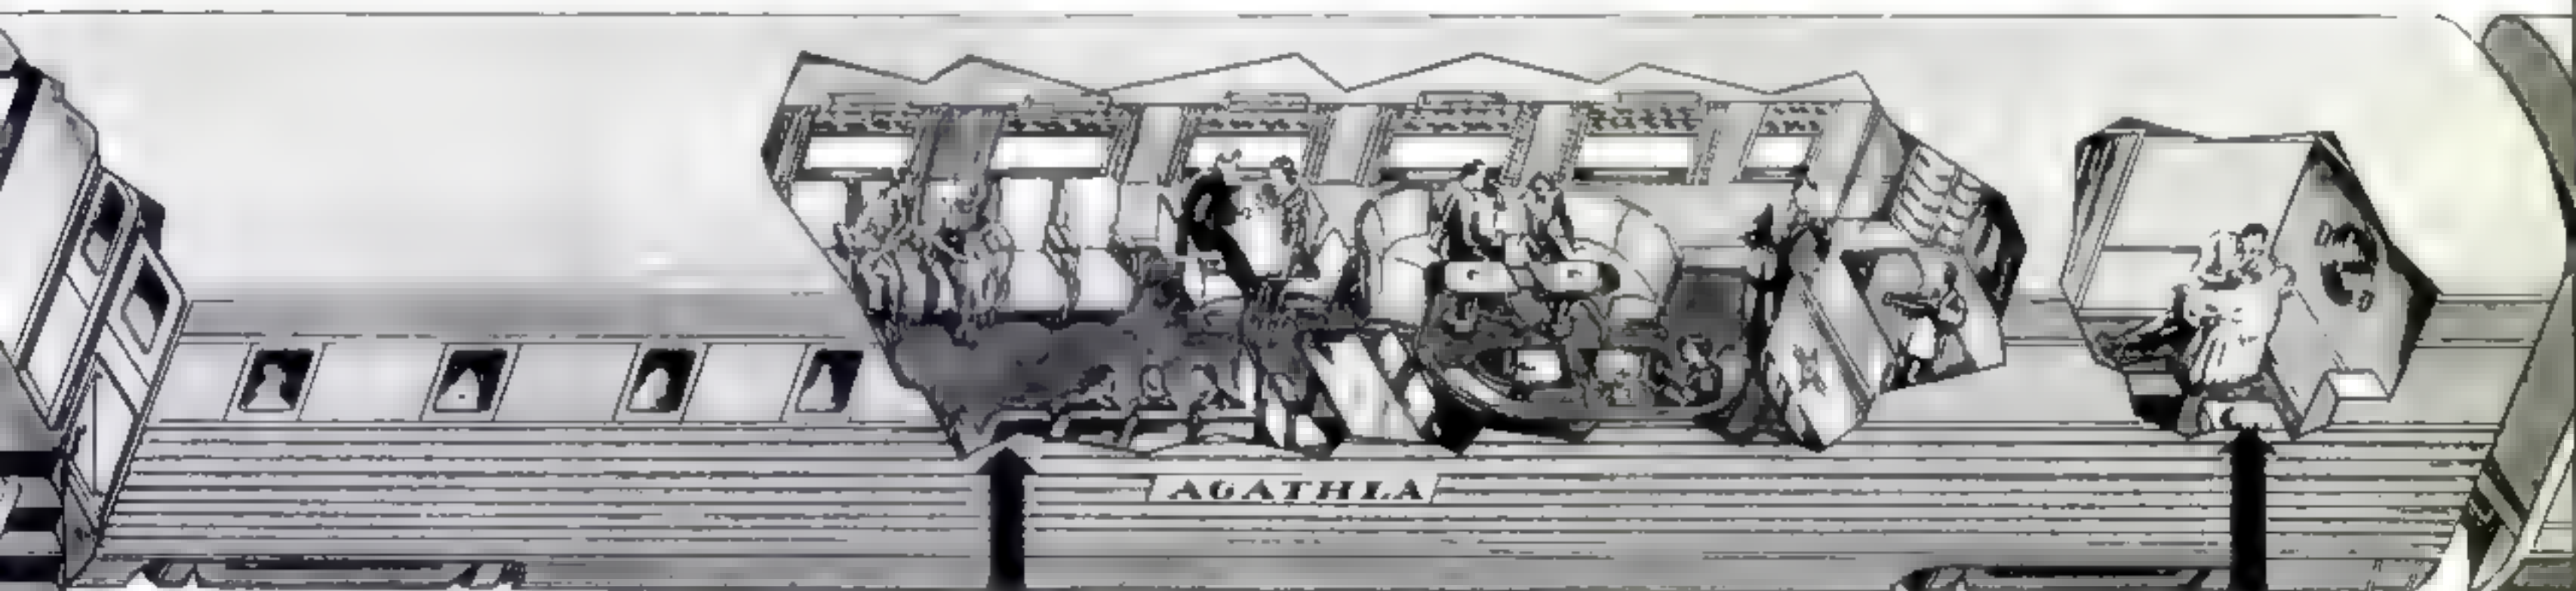

The locomotive is also powered by twin 900-h.p. Diesels. They operate generators which make electricity which runs motors geared direct to the axles of the six-wheel trucks, producing a high traction power.

Engineer is perched high at the front of the spick-and-span cab. It is insulated against both outside and inside noises, thereby making it easier for the engineer and assistant to exchange signal observations.

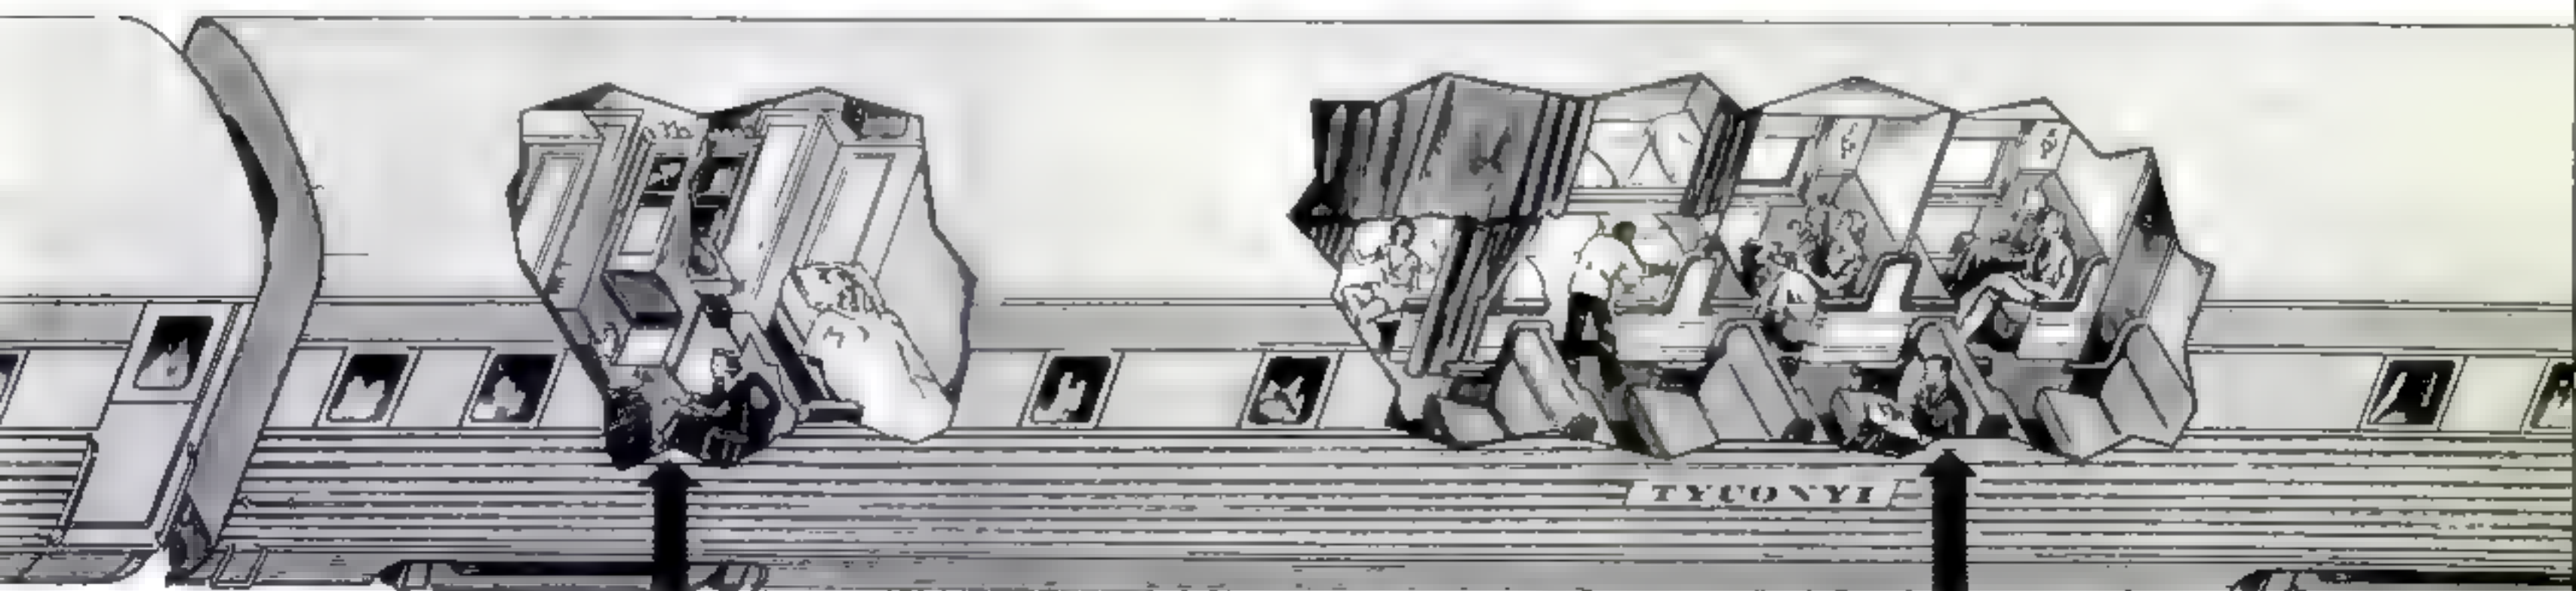

Three positions of roomette furniture are shown above. When dressing, occupant pulls out washstand, opens wardrobe. At night the bed occupies most of compartment. Morning, passenger raises bed against wall.

A passenger lounge is at rear end of the baggage-lounge car. Passengers sit and chat in heavily upholstered chairs and settees. The color scheme ranges from dark red on walls to light gray-blue on the ceiling.

Cocktail lounge has modern furniture made of square metal tubing with molded rubber seat cushions, covered with woven fabric. Two tables are arranged for card players. Barman serves drinks at any hour of trip.

Barbershop is a useful asset to any transcontinental train as most passengers don't like to shave while moving at 80 m.p.h. Next to the barbershop is a shower room. The train crew sleeps at other end of car.

Compartments on the Super Chief are larger than the roomettes and more expensive. Roomettes cost $22.65, compartments sell for $39.50. All the windows on the new streamliner are shaded by Venetian blinds.

Section sleeper comprises eight sections. Cheapest fare includes the cost of an upper berth at $12.60, lower berths cost $15.20. If you want to buy an entire section for yourself you must pay an additional $10.

SHEDDING OF FUR COATS EXPOSES THE PROBLEM OF

Hips

With the first warm days of spring, two phenomena annually occur in the U. S. Prosperous women put aside their fur coats and discover, to their dismay, they have grown definitely "hippy" during the winter. This discovery sends those still interested in their figures into gymnasiums, beauty salons, and turkish baths in droves. This spring the vernal urge to reduce hips promises to be greater than ever. Jackets of smart suits end a few inches below the waistline. Hips that hid under the benign camouflage of a bulky coat now burgeon in glowing sunlight along the avenues and side streets of the nation.

On the page opposite is part of the hip-reducing routine as given at Helena Rubinstein's. Department stores throughout the country have "silhouette shops," "body-sculpture shops" or some similar nice-Nelly-named places where taking inches off hips is serious business. The best of them insist that exercise, massage and diet are all essential to successful reducing. Gym prices vary from $5 a month for group classes twice a week to $100 a month for daily individual treatments. At Madame Rubinstein's a course of twelve intensive treatments costs $100.

In winter this young lady has nothing to worry about because her bulky fur coat completely conceals her figure.

In spring when the same young lady goes forth in this short-jacket Lord & Taylor suit, she has a minor hip problem.

Hips like these in summer slacks prompted Ogden Nash and O. Boglow to compose the inspired bit of lunacy, at right.

Yours are the limbs, my sweetie.

WINGS OVER THE SNOWBOUND 'HUMP' OF THE SIERRA NEVADAS

Snow 18 ft deep dwarfs the trees and rounds out these jagged peaks of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, 150 miles east of San Francisco on the air route to Reno. Mt. Rose (10,800 ft.) is over the wing of the plane (top left) and the craggy walls of Truckee River Canyon reach up through the centre of the picture. The mountains look beautiful, serene and harmless. But transcontinental pilots, who call this range the "hump," climb as high as 10,000 ft., a mile above the highest peak, relax only when it is left well behind. A few weeks ago an airliner hurtled against a mountainside somewhere south of this spot, presumably buried its passengers in the bed of snow. Other transports have met the same fate during the past few years in the California mountains.

This is the first airview of this region of the Sierras taken by a commercial photographer during winter. Because the temperature was -16°F , Clyde Sunderland spent most of his time defrosting the window with hot water, drying it and snapping the picture before the glass was covered with ice again.

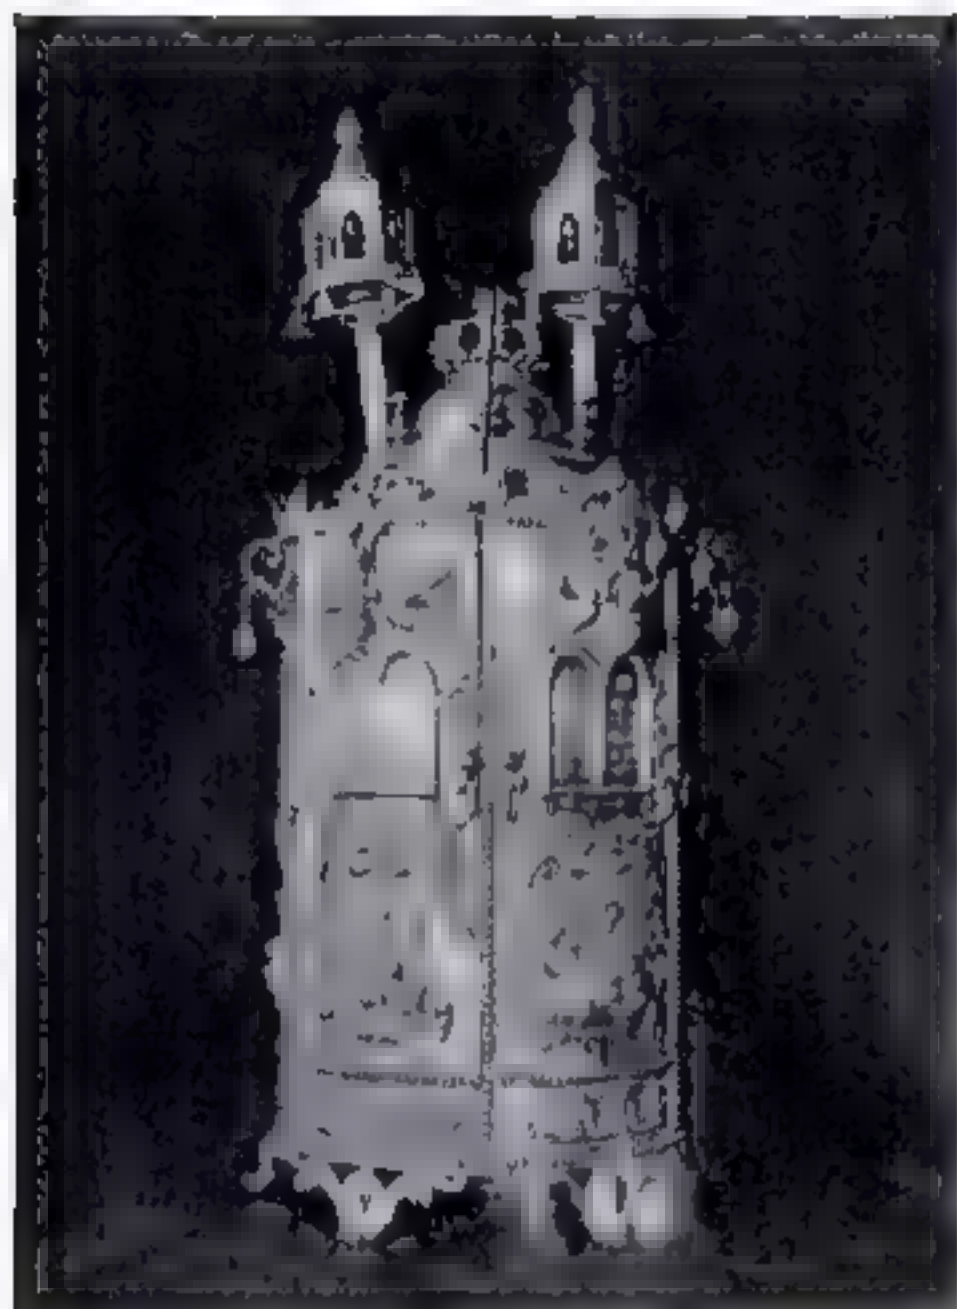

Passover Feast: Blessing over the wine

THE JEWS

AGAIN THE WANDERING CHILDREN OF ISRAEL ARE ON THE MOVE IN HOSTILE EUROPE

Now at Passover they celebrate their Exodus from Egypt

The Torah, which rests inside this lovely silver Torah case, consists of the first five books of the Bible. In them are the Laws of Israel which are the heart of the Jewish religion.

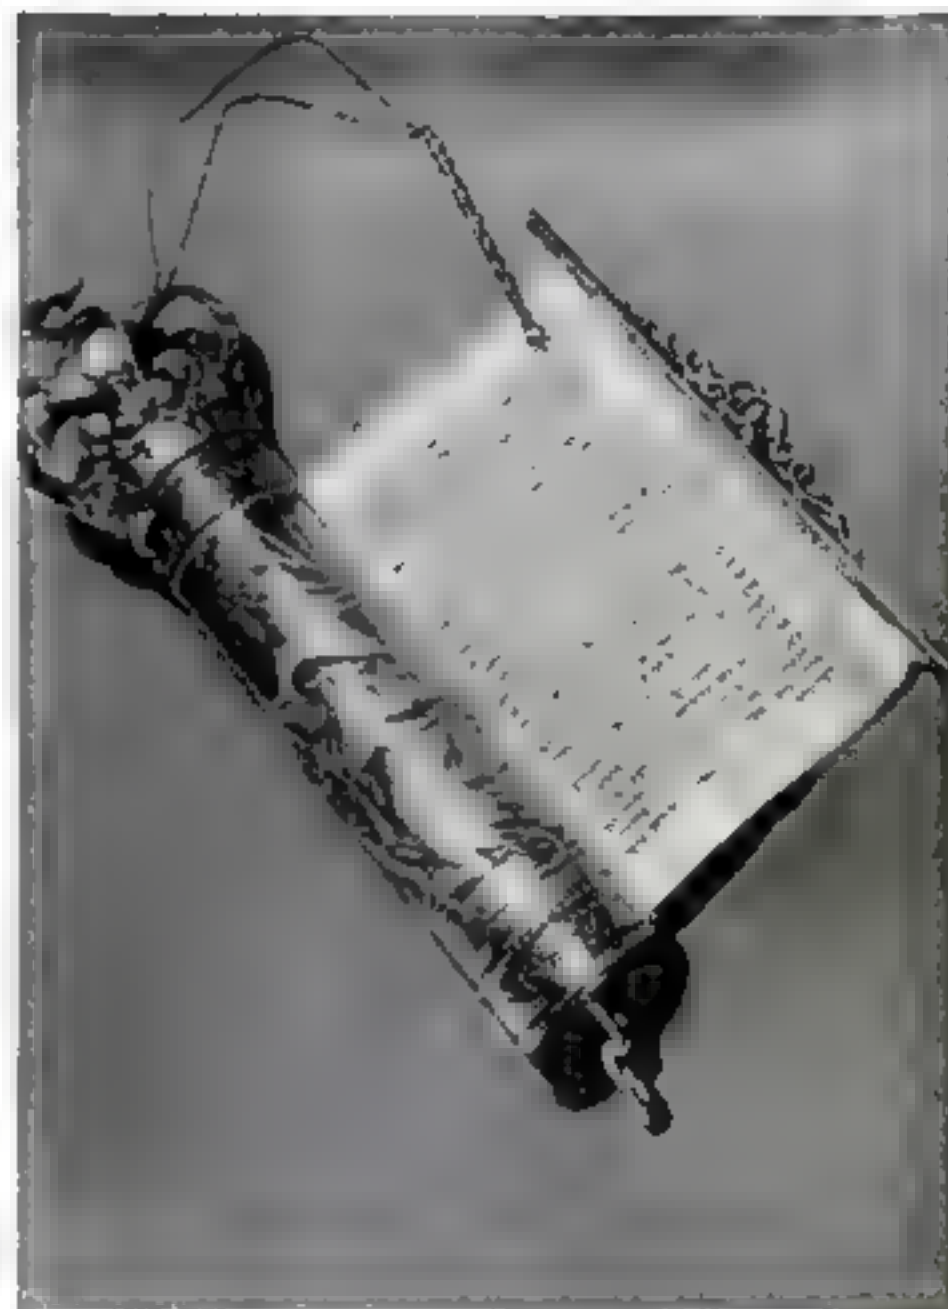

The ten plagues which Jehovah visited on the Egyptians are remembered at the Seder by dipping the finger ten times into the wine (below) and naming a plague at each dipping.

On the broad stream of history, Franklin D. Roosevelt has just tossed a straw. The ripples it made spread into the foreign ministries of two hemispheres, most of which rippled back earnest approval. Then all ripples died away.

What the President had done was remind the world that it was beset with an acute refugee problem. In all lands, he said, were unwanted minorities—millions of people for whom haven should be found. The President specified refugees in Russia, Italy, Spain. But the world well understood that he really meant the greatest of all refugees, the Jews who are the world's eternal wanderers and who once again must take up their unrelenting march from countries which once welcomed them and no longer will tolerate them. They are besieged in Germany and Austria, persecuted in Poland, oppressed in Rumania.

At this time, on the first night of Passover, which falls on April 15, the Jew throughout the world gathers his family about his table for the Seder ceremony to tell of the greatest of all his wanderings—the Exodus from Egypt. At the Seder, the head of the family says: "This year we are here, next year we shall be in the land of Israel."

This hope, echoing down the generations of Jewry, has an especial irony now when the Jew, instead of returning to a homeland, must disperse over the world in the search of safety and the simple grace of peace. But the Seder, symbolizing his deliverance from bondage in Egypt, is a happy occasion. These photographs are of an orthodox Seder at the Home of the Sons and Daughters of Israel in New York.

The Megillah tells of the deliverance of Jews from evil Haman, an event celebrated on Purim. This Megillah and Torah case are in New York's Jewish Theological Seminary.

Four questions concerning the ceremony are asked by the youngest at each Seder (below). The head of the family, in his reply, recounts the story of the Exodus from Egypt.

THE JEWS FIRST FLED FROM EGYPT

Doré illustrates wandering to Promised Land

When the Angel of the Lord, sent to visit the tenth plague on the Egyptians, came down to kill the firstborn in all the land, he passed over the houses of the Jews. From this, the festival of Passover gets its name. In the Bible's story, illustrated here by the famous drawings of Gustave Doré, great 19th Century French artist (see p. 11), the Lord had ordered Pharaoh to free His children from bondage. But not until He had afflicted Egypt with ten plagues did the obdurate Pharaoh yield.

Led by Moses, the Israelites marched toward the Red Sea where a great wind parted the waters so that the Jews crossed on dry land. When the pursuing Egyptians followed, the waters came together and the Egyptians were drowned. This Exodus is the most celebrated of all the wanderings of the Jews. It took them back to the land of Canaan. The Lord, in the Biblical story, had promised Abraham that his seed should possess Canaan. His great-grandchildren were driven to Egypt by famine. Their descendants, made slaves in Egypt, fled with Moses and wandered 40 years before they reached their Promised Land.

In actual history, Canaan was the goal of two great Jewish migrations. About 2000 B.C., a pastoral tribe of Hebrews, led by Abraham, left Chaldea, which is near the Persian Gulf. They followed a caravan route to Canaan, the strip of land along the Mediterranean between the two great Biblical terminals, Dan and Beersheba. There the Hebrews settled and flourished. Generations later some went down into Egypt and settled in the fertile land of Goshen, which lies east of the Nile Delta. About 1200 B.C. they rebelled against the Egyptians and set out again for Canaan. The direct route was northeast but the Canaanites there were strong enough to repel an Israelite invasion. The Jews turned southeast across the Red Sea and after long wandering and warfare, finally broke into Canaan north of the Dead Sea.

"At midnight the Lord smote all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, from the firstborn of Pharaoh unto the firstborn of the captive in the dungeon. And Pharaoh rose up and called for Moses and said: 'Get you forth from among my people, both ye and the children of Israel!'"

"On the third day in the morning, the Lord came down upon Mount Sinai and Moses went up. And God spoke 'I am the Lord thy God, which have brought thee out of the land of Egypt. ...' " So saying, He gave Moses the Ten Commandments graven on two stone tablets.

"And the Lord sent fiery serpents, and they bit the people. Therefore the people came to Moses, and said, 'We have sinned.' And Moses made a serpent of brass, and put it upon a pole and if a serpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the serpent of brass, he lived."

In China, Jews found peace and were assimilated

IN 1,900 YEARS THE JEW HAS ROAMED THE WORLD

70 A.D. TO 1000 A.D.

The modern migrations of the Jew trace a crazy criss-cross around the Mediterranean and through Europe. They began in 70 A.D. The Jews of Palestine had rebelled against Rome and that year were defeated. Their Temple was destroyed and their exile from Palestine soon began.

But in the wide Roman world, they found many havens. In all trading centres were colonies of Jews where the dispersed sons of Israel could carry on their heritage. A great centre of Jewish authority became Babylon to whose learned rabbis the Jews of all the world looked for guidance. Then, around 1000 A.D., famine and depression came to Babylon and, like famine and depression long before and ever since, forced the Jew from his adopted land.

1000 A.D. TO 1500 A.D.

In Spain, after 1000 A.D., Jewish culture, under tolerant Mohammedan rule, reached its golden age. Its art, science and philosophy flourished and its rabbis were great. But the Christian kings, who drove the Saracens back, did not like Jews. In 1391, they massacred 50,000 of them. In 1492, the Jews were banished from Spain by Ferdinand and Isabella. The Spanish, or Sephardic, Jews scattered over Europe and the Near East, eventually came in fair number to the Americas.

Meanwhile in the rest of Europe, the Jews were unhappy. As the Crusaders in 1096 marched across the Rhineland, they slaughtered Jews as they went. In 1200, the Jews were expelled from England; in 1394, from France. When the Black Death swept Europe in 1348, the Jews were massacred for it. So the Jews, taking up their wanderings, fled to Poland which lacked a middle class and welcomed Jews.

1500 TO 1789

For the Jew, the Middle Ages lasted until the French Revolution. In Europe he could not own land or join guilds. Instead of being a farmer or artisan, he became a merchant, a middleman. Because he never knew when he might suddenly have to flee, he kept his wealth in cash or negotiables. He became a money-lender. A few Jews, as the Renaissance wore on, became rich. But most were poor and forced to live in the Ghetto. There, in crowded squalor, the Jew sought to ease his sorrow by turning to his religion. In the ghetto he never could forget or escape his Jewishness. By the end of the 18th Century, restrictions were lifting. The French Revolution gave final impetus to European political emancipation which was granted Jews in the 19th Century.

The Jew has been faced with a growing problem that today provokes him to hot discussion: Should he become assimilated and, instead of remaining a Jew, merge into his adopted homeland?

On the opposite page is an arch-assimilationist, a modern Chinese Jew. His fathers wandered into China centuries ago and found kindness and respect. Unmolested, some of them became more Chinese than Jewish. Entirely Chinese today they have found peace in assimilation. But many have forgotten the law, the religion and the heritage of Israel.

The Jew on this page is unassimilated. He is fleeing Germany for Brazil and here on the boat deck, is saying his morning prayers. His praying shawl is over his shoulders, his phylacteries can be seen on forehead and wrist. He keeps the pious ways of his fathers always with him. This, says the assimilationist, makes him a stranger wherever he goes. And a stranger is ever unwanted, ever a wanderer.

The non-assimilated Jew flees Europe

Russia, 1919: the last of the great Russian pogroms took place in the Ukraine in 1919-20 when the anti-Bolshevik armies of Petlura and Denikin, incited by their leaders, wantonly killed 30,000 Jews. The victims shown here have been wrapped in praying shawls for burial.

Russia, 1920: these are younger victims of the Petlura pogroms. But this cruel massacrismet a just end. Defeated by Red armies, he escaped to Paris where, in 1926, he was killed by a Jew to avenge the pogrom. A Paris jury acquitted the Jew, fined him one franc.

Poland, 1937: Sienkiewics Street, in the Jewish section of Brest Litovsk, was emptied of its Jews as anti-Semitic hoodlums began one of their sporadic raids. They were furtively photographed breaking into a Jewish home whose windows had been shuttered against them.

Poland, 1937: In June, in Czestochowa, a seven-day pogrom broke out. Almost every Jewish home and store was damaged. Hundreds of Jews, like this old man, were injured. On the second and third day, a local paper published names of streets not yet pillaged.

Poland, 1937: In May, in Brest Litovsk, a Polish official was killed by a Jew whose property he tried to confiscate. In the anti-Jewish riots which followed, dozens of Jews were badly injured, three were killed. The whole Jewish section of the town was destroyed.

Romania, 1936: Famine and anti-Semitism drove thousands of Jewish children from their homes. These were taken to Hungary, fed by American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee which helps to relieve and rehabilitate hundreds of thousands of European Jews.

A TERROR TO JEWS, "POGROM" IS RUSSIAN FOR "DEVASTATION"

In 1881 in Russia began a series of massacres which Jews came to know by the terrible word "pogrom," which is Russian for "devastation." That year the Tsarist government organized mass attacks on Jews. These always took the same form: a Jew was engaged in a brawl; a mob, abetted by the military, quickly gathered, beat the Jew, expanded the fight into a murderous raid on all Jews in the town. The pogroms spread, swept all Russia.

Pogroms in Russia broke out every few years until 1920. Thousands of Jews were killed, millions were beggared. Some had their eyes gouged out, nails driven into their skulls. Between 1881 and 1920, more than 1,000,000 Russian Jews fled to the U. S. The U. S. now has 4,000,000 Jews—one of every four on earth—and is the world's biggest Jewish country.

Today in Poland, pogroms are perennial but are conducted on a smaller scale. Usually they are vicious local riots, started by hoodlums or professional anti-Semites. Few Jews are killed, though many are maimed and their houses and shops invariably looted. There are 3,000,000 Jews in Poland, which is the second largest Jewish country in the world.

The gratitude of refugees from Germany who found safety in France was touchingly expressed by Jews who hung out this banner of thanks. Of the 135,000 Jewish refugees who have left Germany since 1933, 43,000 have gone to Palestine, 30,000 to Western Europe, 20,000 to Eastern Europe, 21,000 to South America, more than 15,000 to North America.

A pogrom was starting in a small Polish town last year when a lucky photographer took this remarkable picture. The news has brought Jews rushing from their houses to learn if riot and doom will descend upon them. On the faces of these poor, shawled women may be seen the fear which has been for centuries in the hearts of Jews who have never known when the hatred of anti-Semites would suddenly fall on them to inflict injury or death or shame, to destroy their homes, loot their shops and desecrate their synagogues.

Jew, Jew, Jew, Jew, Jew was painted across the windows of this non-Aryan store in Berlin, when Hitler came into power, to warn loyal or cautious Germans away. Fervid Nazis broke windows, threw tear gas and stink bombs into Jewish shops. Some of the biggest and best stores in Berlin were once owned by Jews. Aryans control most of them now.

Street-cleaning by Jews is a favorite Nazi device for publicly humiliating "non-Aryans." This German scene was re-enacted in Vienna a few days after the Nazis took over Austria. Routed from their houses and herded through the streets by uniformed plug-uglies, Jews were forced to scrub emblems of anti-Nazi parties off walls and sidewalks.

Today the Jews of Austria are fleeing Nazi oppression

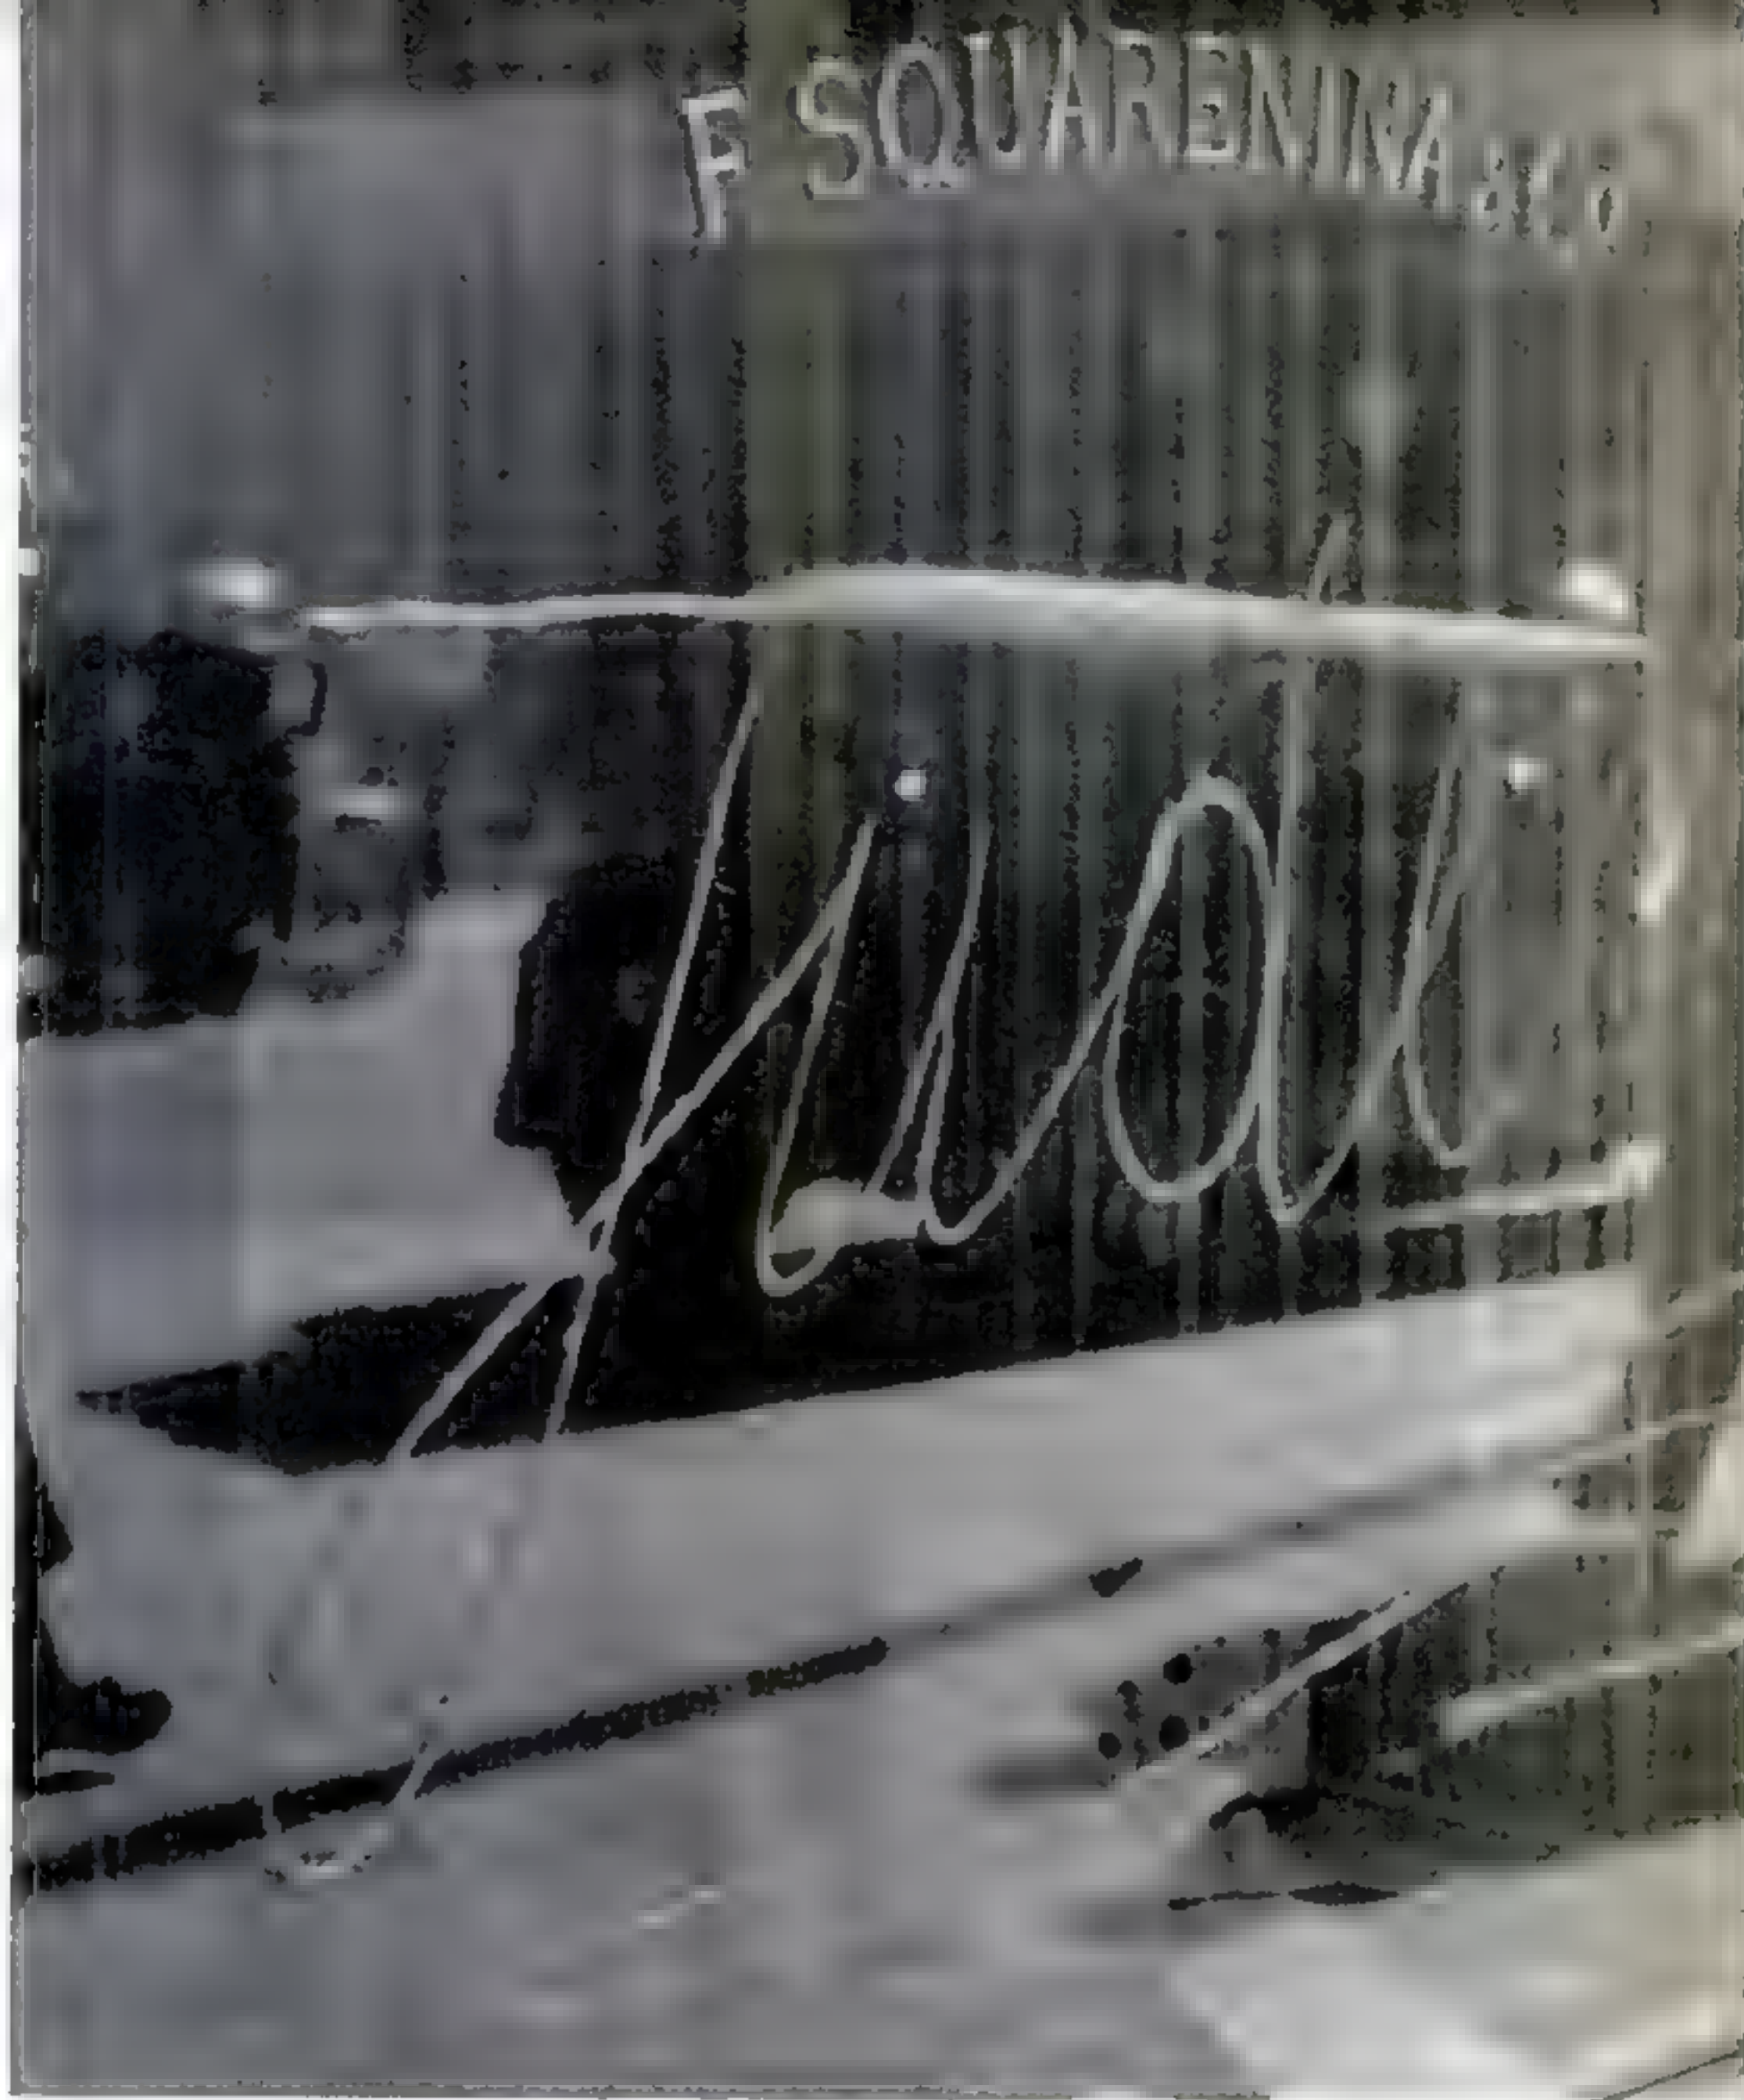

Of all the countries of Europe, the Jew loved Germany best. There he became more German than the German, more loyal to his foster-fatherland than the most patriotic Junker. Jews all over the world reflected this feeling. In the 19th Century, Germany was the cultural centre of world Jewry.

When the Nazis came to power in 1933, terror came to the German Jew. His rights, property and freedom were snatched. He was beaten and humiliated. His shops were boycotted. Swastikas were burned into his scalp. The beards of his reverends were torn out. He was killed. As many Jews as could left Germany. Since 1933, 135,000 have emigrated—almost one-third of them to Palestine, some 15,000 to the U. S. But there are still 565,000 left in Germany to suffer the fiercest forms of anti-Semitism.

In March, the terror came to the 200,000 Jews in Austria when Hitler annexed their country. What happened in Germany was precisely repeated in Austria, more efficiently but no less cruelly. The Jew in Austria prepared to resume his wanderings.

The German Jew was the most assimilated Jew on the Continent. Some, in merging into their environment, kept their religion. Others married Christians, went to Christian churches, felt as Gentile as their neighbors. But under Hitler, they discovered that if either of their grandparents were Jewish, they were Jews, to be shunned and despised by all Aryans.

As he suffered and as he fled the Reich, the Jew had one consolation. He was not the only refugee from Germany. Such great non-Jews as Thomas Mann, the author; George Gros, the artist; Heinrich Brüning, the statesman, and Walter Gropius, the architect, also fled because under the Nazis they could not feel safe in their persons or their consciences.

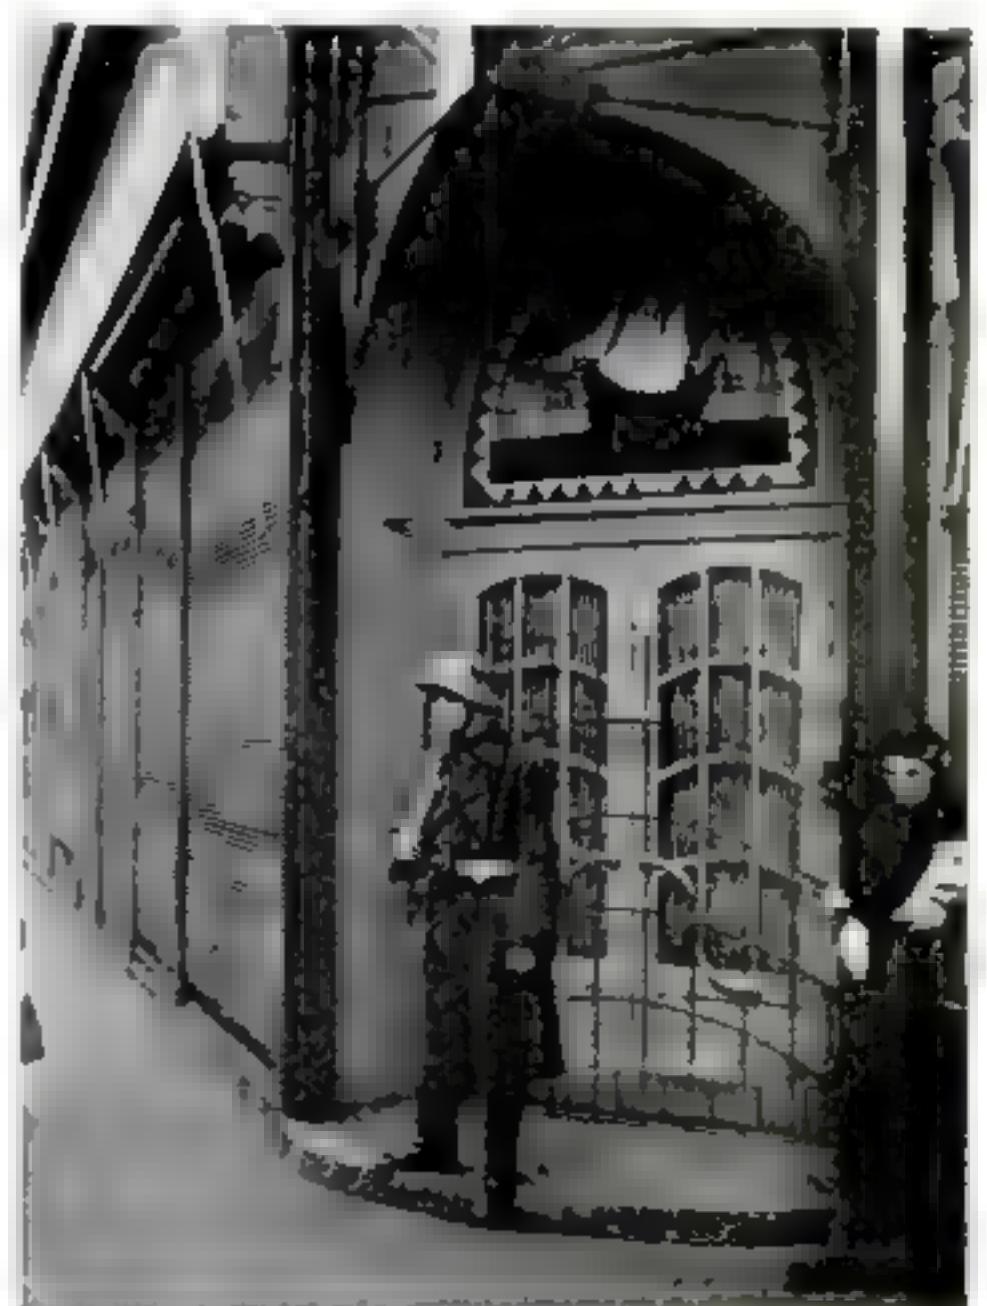

JEW was scrawled in soap across this Vienna window by hasty Nazis who, when Hitler triumphed, could not wait to get paint. In short order, however, printed notices were ready and posted on windows to stigmatize Jewish stores.

The flight from Vienna began when the Nazis came. This long line of Jews formed at the Polish Embassy to get visas.

A Jewish store in Vienna, Schiffmann's, was closed, put under guard. There are no big Jewish shops left in Vienna.

Eva and Rudi Dollfuss, children of the murdered Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss of Austria, fled with their mother to Switzerland just before the Germans took over. Eva, aged 7½, and Rudi, 6, are playing in the park of a castle near Fribourg.

The Hon. Unity Mitford, English friend of Hitler, is a favorite with all the Nazis because of her blonde, Nordic good looks. At a recent dinner Gen. Goring rose, banged the table for silence and proclaimed: "I consider Miss Mitford, Lady Guinness (her sister) and Frau Goring the most perfect Aryan women I have ever seen."

In rich India Goat
others from $2 to $15

That's why you get
MORE WEAR
No thread to rot—or to tear the leather—no seams to rip—no cementing to come apart.

MORE ROOM
Ingenious, patented, flexible construction—expands to take an amazing 'load,' slides back into place for normal use. Never restricted by stitching.

MORE BEAUTY
No stitches to mar the smooth, hand-tooled edges—nothing but fine leather... and fine leather craftsmanship.

Here's how it's made...
and what it offers:

It's cut out of a single piece of leather and skillfully folded into place. Sturdy "ears" tuck in and lock. It's simple... practical... Two full-length compartments for bills and checks, etc. Leather stamp and card cases. Transparent pass case. 3 additional pockets for tickets, etc. Flexible construction takes this load without cramping. Buxton Stitchless Billfolds are the most popular, largest selling billfolds ever made!

"ZIP-GUARD" MODELS, TOO...
Offer an open compartment and a zip-sealed, full-length private compartment which keeps papers out of sight. New, patented "Zip-Guard"—indicated by arrow—prevents papers from catching or jamming on slide fastener and getting torn.
$2.50 in Grained Cowhide
Others to $15.50

WHY DO THIS

1 Why cut leather to sew it together again? No stitching or cementing is as strong as the natural leather.

AND THEN THIS

2 Stitches often tear the leather... seams come apart. Folding, as Buxton (and only Buxton) does it, with interlocking "ears," makes stitches needless.

Here's a unique guarantee!
Because there are 'no stitches,' Buxton can—and does—guarantee every Stitchless Billfold to last until the leather itself wears out! Write for "Leather for the Layman." Dept. B, Buxton, Inc., Springfield, Mass.

The Birth of a Baby

In its last issue LIFE presented a record of the motion picture, "The Birth of a Baby." As this issue goes to press the first reactions are just coming in. These are a few:

Dr. Thomas Parran Jr., Surgeon General of the U. S. Public Health Service writes: "LIFE is to be congratulated upon its awareness of health as a factor in the nation's life. The presentation of scenes from The Birth of a Baby is another contribution to popular intelligence without which health advances for all the people are impossible."

Mrs. Janet Fowler Nelson, secretary of the Committee on Family Relationships of the National Y. W. C. A.: "I am convinced that it is not only 'good for us' to see but literally meets a deeply felt need."

Father F. H. Sill, Headmaster of Kent School, Kent, Conn.: "I see no objection whatsoever to the film The Birth of a Baby. Your magazine has a wide circulation in Kent School. I am sure that the fact that boys see these things in pictures will not in any sense alter their opinion that the birth of a baby is a very serious, solemn and joyful affair."

In Boston where LIFE was banned in advance of publication, the Boston Traveler had this to say: "The LIFE article appears to us to be thoroughly decent and constructive. We believe the publication not only will make for better health of babies and mothers, but actually will remove much false fear of childbirth. . . . Everyone of us was born. Is it any harm to know how?"

In New Haven a test case was made of a ban by the local police chief. Among those who agreed to testify for LIFE were Mrs. Edith Valet Cook, secretary of the Community Child Welfare Association, Dr. Howard Haggard, professor of Applied Physiology at Yale University, the Rev. Oscar Maurer, rector of Center Episcopal Church, and Dr. Nelson Ludington, former police commissioner. After examining LIFE's story, Judge Thomas Sullivan removed the ban.

Dr. Frederic Woodward, vice president of the University of Chicago, writes: "Accept hearty congratulations both on the excellence of your presentation and on the service you have rendered public health."

Grace Abbott, professor of public welfare, University of Chicago: "In my opinion the film The Birth of a Baby which I have had the privilege of seeing, is a very valuable one. I hope LIFE's series of pictures will induce many people to see the film. Publication by LIFE of these pictures should aid in the fight for preventing the death of mothers and babies."

Dr. Herman K. Bundesen, President of the Chicago Board of Health: "This film and the article, I believe, will do more than any other thing at the moment to save babies and their mothers. My own six youngsters will be among the first to read the article and see the pictures."

Mrs. Ruth O. McCann, counselor to women, Northwestern University: "At last someone has had the courage to lift the curtain on 'They Lived Happily Ever After' in a thoroughly intelligent and scientific way. It is tremendously important not only from the standpoint of health but, I sincerely believe, from the standpoint of morals."

Abel J. Gregg, member of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A.: "LIFE's photographic preview of the film The Birth of a Baby is so well done that I am going to make it the basis of conversation with my son."

James Borrett of London had the surprise of his 76 years when he learned that the Queen was coming to see his flat in a Government housing project. In a fit of shyness he ran away. The Queen gone, he raved: "Fancy me taking on like that!"

Queen Elizabeth, out inspecting housing projects, missed shy Mr. Borrett (top of page) but found the Bennett family. Mrs. Bennett dropped her ironing in delight but the children reproached Her Majesty for not bringing the royal Princesses

Ralph Smith, farmhand's son of Great Meadows, N. J., blazed with anger when Betty Donna, the boss's daughter, played that she was a great lady and Ralph a serf. He shot her with a rifle. Luckily Betty did not die and Ralph is free to blow his whistle.

Alice Brady, Motion Picture Academy prizewinner for the best supporting role (In Old Chicago), did not let a bruken ankle prevent her from appearing on a radio program. She broadcast with her foot in a splint, wiggling well-pedicured toes.

SOONER or later, in nearly every married couple's life, one question comes up that husband and wife both dread to answer. The question is—where would they be, if the breadwinner were to lose his job.

Most families have pitifully little set aside. According to reliable authorities, the odds are extreme against any man ever achieving old-age independence. Indeed, the chances are slim that he will possess as much as $1000 in cash at any time.

And yet, today, it is a relatively simple matter for anyone, even of modest earnings, to be secure for the future. You need set aside only a little odd change a day in a Fidelity Income Plan, in order to have funds when you need them most.

For nearly 27 years, Fidelity has successfully served thrift-minded men and women. It has grown to a mighty organization with assets exceeding 35 million dollars—an organization that has never failed to meet an obligation when due—that keeps on deposit at all times, with state authorities, approved securities equalling the total cash liability to all contract-owners.

Start now to end your worries about the future. Have money enough to see you through the sunset years, to educate your children, to take advantage of business opportunities, to travel, or to meet unforeseen emergencies. TROY STUDENTS CORNER PENNIES IN TAX REVOLT

On April 2, scores of students from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute swooped down on banks and stores in Troy, N. Y., demanded that bills from $5 to $100 be changed for pennies. By April 4, tellers and storekeepers became suspicious but it was too late. The students had cornered the penny market, having collected 250,- 000 coppers. Sales had to be made in round sums or not at all. Next day, same students re-invaded Troy, gave merchants 75¢ and 25 pennies for every $1 purchase, announced they were "TaxCENTinels." Their aim is to make U. S. citizens tax-conscious by showing that hidden taxes amount to 25% of merchandise prices.

TAXCENTINELS

TO PUT THE AX TO THE HIDDEN TAX WITH THE ACCENT ON THE CENT.

Banner of the TaxCENTinels was the impoverished taxpayer clothed in a barrel, to which they added an academic mortarboard.

Penny booth on the R.P.I. campus was thronged by students getting their pennies before going to Troy to make purchases.

Leaders of the college revolt against hidden taxes were Larry Warwick (left) and Robert Bauman. Above, they gloat over their catch—a ton of pennies worth $2,500. The sign at right was used to taunt Troy's penniless merchants and bankers.

A NEW SHAVE CREAM FOR Daily Shavers

Forms protection between blade and skin... especially designed for the 1 man in 7 who shaves EVERY DAY

MODERN LIFE demands that now 1 man in 7 shave every day. Yet daily shaving may tear and irritate any man's skin unless protected against razor scrape.

To meet the "shave-a-day" man's problem, Williams has built an entirely new-type shave cream. It's called Glider. You spread on Glider quickly and easily with the fingers—never a brush. It's not sticky or greasy, and it won't clog your razor.

Glider forms a thin protective layer on your face. This film between razor and skin allows blade to shave swiftly and easily without scraping.

Try Glider today. It never freezes or separates in hot or cold weather. Glider is made by The J. B. Williams Co., makers of fine shaving preparations for nearly 100 years. Large-size tube now only 25¢.

As soon as all pennies had been garnered, placards (above) attacking hidden levies on necessities of life dotted R.P.I. campus. Student leaders harped on the fact that 70% of all U. S. levies were hidden taxes, were collected by 175,000 separate taxing bodies. Within 48 hours the revolt spread to New York City colleges and promised to become a nationwide movement.

Polytechnic President Dr. William Otis Hotchkiss signed up on the roll, became the No. 1 member of the TaxCENTmels.

TaxCENTinel founder George Dolber shows Ruth Harrington his sack of pennies. He pays a fourth of purchases in pennies.

A letter that came the night before she graduated

Dear Daughter:

I wonder if every father is surprised to find his daughter grown up? It all seems to happen so fast. Yesterday you were a baby with very pink toes and a smile the neighbors ran in to see.

I'm glad you have kept that smile. I wish I could tell you how your mother and I really feel about you. But that would take a better writer than your dad. The best we could do was to say it with a present.

We thought a long time about this present. It had to be something as far above the ordinary as you are. And we wanted something you could use and enjoy for many years. That's why we chose a Hamilton Watch.

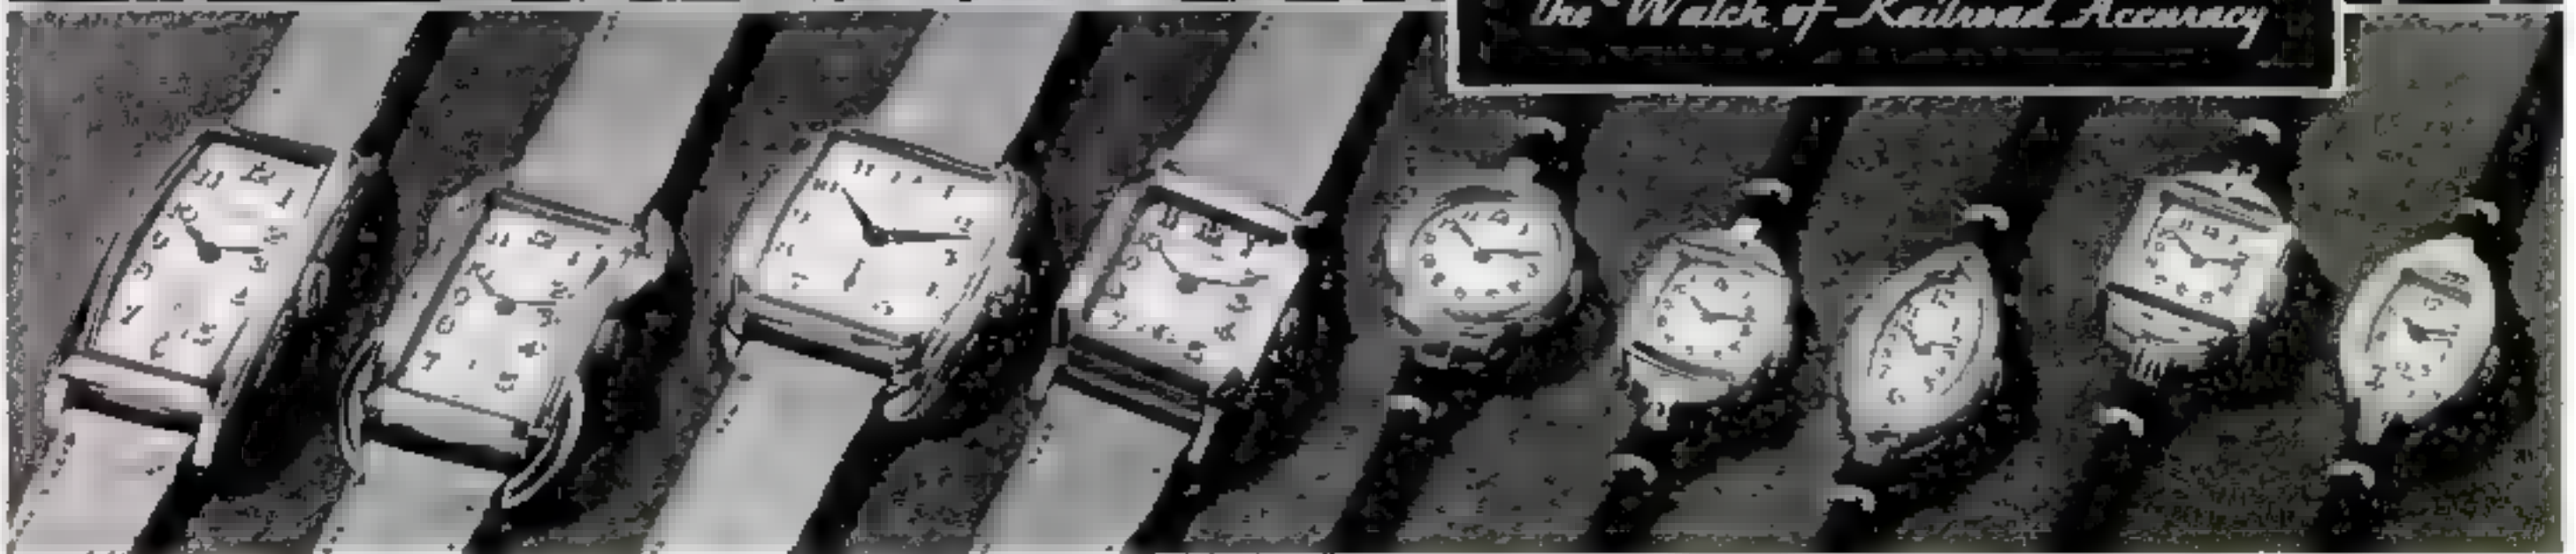

Your mother and I aren't very much to talk. Tomorrow after the ceremony, we probably won't have a thing to say. But I want you to know now that we'll be as happy and proud as any two people on earth.

Yours, Dad

This year—come to the land where history parades before your eyes in a living, colorful pageant. Would you like to follow in Coronado's footsteps to the Indian Pueblos discovered in 1540? Watch painted Indians in the same weird ceremonial dances that amazed the Spanish Conquistadores? Explore remote mountain villages where life flows on much as it did when this land was ruled by the Spanish Crown?

This year—visit New Mexico, land of dramatic contrasts, where it is but a step from modern metropolitan cities to unspoiled mountain playgrounds—where broad highways lead you swiftly from modern scenes into the heart of a changeless empire of living history.

TWO KINDS OF MASKS FOR ENGLAND

War scares and labor troubles hide British faces

The English have long boasted that they were too proud to hide their faces but the complexities of the modern world have changed all that. Below, a smart press agent for London's Murray's Club on Beak Street cashes in on England's current gas-mask propaganda by putting his chorus girls in masks. At bottom, Eastbourne hotel strikers picket in hoods.

Chorus and band at one of London's West End night clubs "co-operate" handsomely with an official of the Air Raid Precautions Department by truckin' in gas masks.

Strikers at an Eastbourne seaside hotel wear hoods while picketing to avoid prejudicing their jobs. Even hooded, the checked coat seems recognizable anywhere.

A SPEEDBOAT TAKES COCOA KING DE MATTOS' GUESTS TO HIS ISLAND PARTY IN RIO DE JANEIRO BAY. AT RIGHT REAR IS SUGAR LOAF MOUNTAIN

Host Darke Bhering de Mattos sets his guests an informal example by eating fresh chicken with fingers. The bottle holds Brazilian beer. Note toothpicks, socially acceptable in Brazil.

A night-club dinner in Rio de Janeiro was given by Mr. de Mattos day before the island jaunt. At centre is his American-born wife who worked at Rio's Elizabeth Arden ranch.

Honeymoon House is the name of this cottage on the cocoa king's island retreat where he invites newly-married friends to stay as his guests. In the foreground is a century plant.

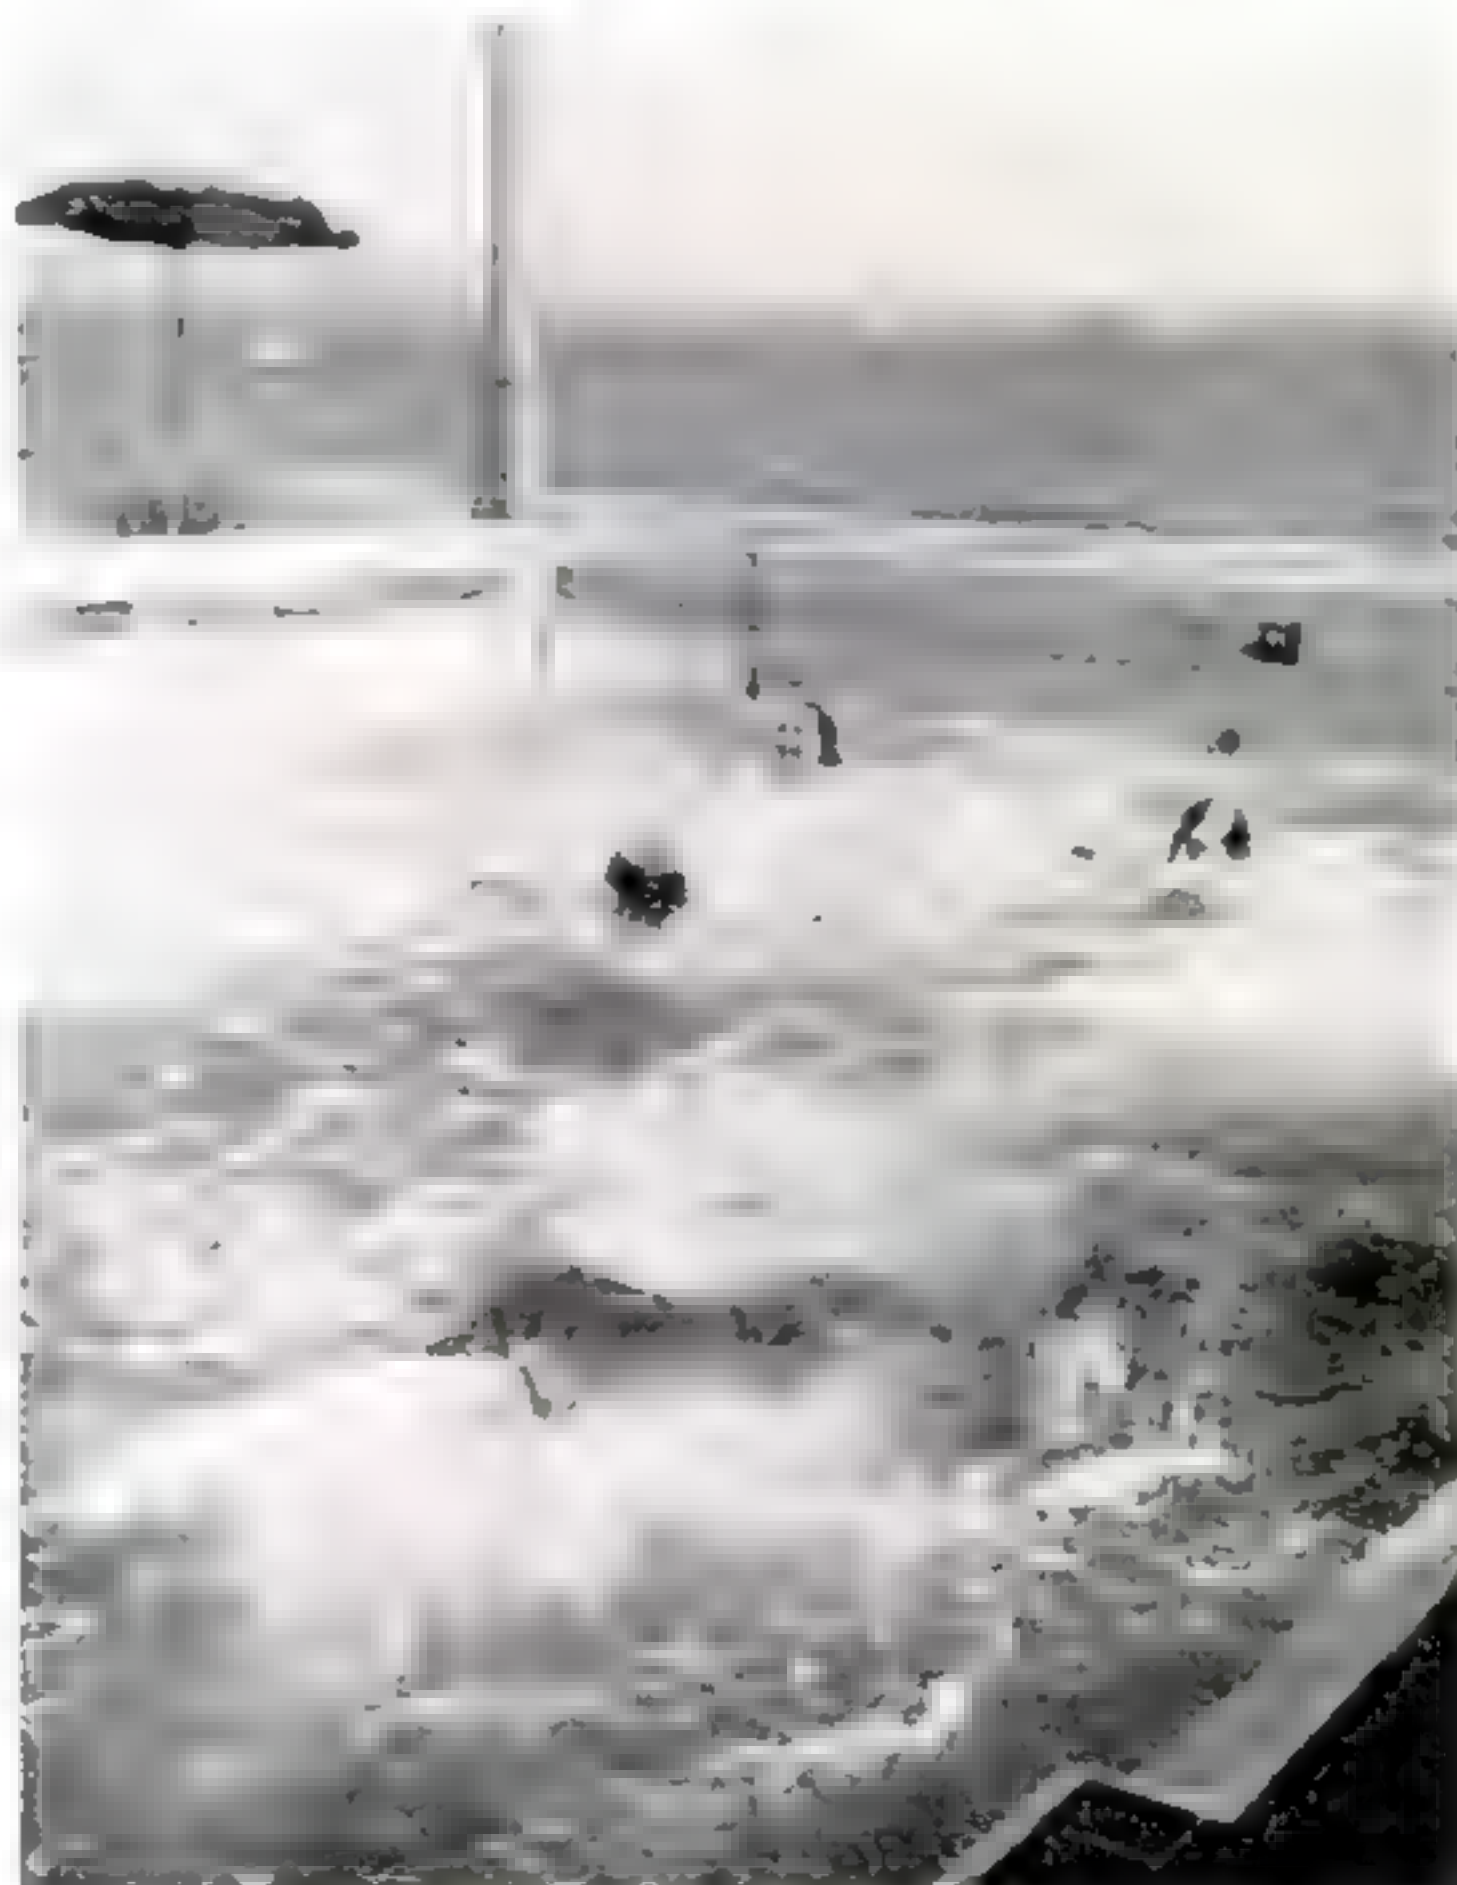

INTO A SALT-WATER POOL TO ESCAPE BRAZILIAN HEAT DIVE HOST DARKE BHERING DE MATTOS (EXTREME LEFT) AND HIS ISLAND-PARTY GUESTS

Life Goes to a Party

with Darke Bhering de Mattos, a cocoa king of Brazil

Rich from coffee and cattle and cocoa, many a Brazilian millionaire has a town house in Rio de Janeiro, but because of the tropical climate, may also own a place on the breeze-swept islands of vast and beautiful Rio de Janeiro Bay. A typical member of this industrially-potent, pleasure-loving class is 35-year-old Darke Bhering de Mattos who inherited the cocoa firm of Bhering & Co., one of the biggest producers and distributors of cocoa products in Brazil.

On a recent hot Sunday in Rio de Janeiro, where it was midsummer, this hospitable industrialist took 20-odd guests by motorboat and plane several miles out to an island in the bay which his family has owned for several generations. There the party escaped the heat and humidity by splashing about in a salt-water pool fed by the bay, gratefully sipped ice-cold concoctions of cocoa-milk-and-gin and cocoa-milk-and-whisky. Later they dressed informally for an outdoor luncheon which included Brazilian fish with a spice sauce, fried chicken and Brazilian beer. In the afternoon they lolled about, swam some more, and explored the small, hilly island where their affable, energetic host has several guest houses, verandas with aquariums, a staff of servants and a magnificent view of Rio harbor. By nightfall, well-fed, well-exercised and well-rested, they were ready to go back to Rio whose urban pleasures of gambling and dancing contrast sharply with the leisurely week-end fun of upper-class island life.

Fed by the bay but safe from sharks and barracuda is Cocoa King Darke de Mattos' island swimming pool. Visible in the background are the mountains on the mainland.

These are some shots of my economics instructor J. B. Bearson, Associate Professor of Economics at the University of Utah. These pictures were made during two hours of class period. Professors must

Sirs:

Speaking of pictures, life, and action, these surely are incorporated in the enclosed picture of a kicking horse (below). The horses in question are army cavalry horses, here at Fort Riley. In case there is any doubt in your mind, the horse who was kicked at so viciously was successfully able to dodge the "haymaker," although he did get some dirt in his eyes.

ENTERPRISE EDITOR

Sirs:

One of the things which most impressed me in your recent pictures of Editor William Allen White was the surprising similarity of his desk to that of the Cokato Enterprise's Editor Clifford L. Hedberg (below). The picture of Editor White was obviously posed. The only posing for this picture was the fact that Editor Hedberg put on his vest to cover his suspenders. (He didn't quite succeed.) Note the movie camera atop the envelope boxes and the cornet mute at the left. There are dog biscuits in the bag in the left-hand corner of the desk.

MISSOURI RIVER BETWEEN

Sirs:

Remember about this time last year LIFE published the Benton murals and used a picture of the Missouri Statehouse on "the edge of a hayfield?" And the flock of letters LIFE received stating that the Missouri Capitol is separated from the field by the Missouri River?

Anyway, what I wanted to point out to you now is that we're putting this field into potatoes this year with the aid of a flop-eared Callaway County mule.
